THE COWBOYS

Two hundred years ago, a group of settlers crossed the Appalachian Mountains and pushed through the Cumberland Gap, moving across the Mississippi River into the Western United States. Over the next years, more and more settlers headed west and around 1850, "the last frontier" became populated with a people who created a new heritage. They were the Cowboys.

The frontier was a man's world and a world of hard work. The Cowboys' name came from their work, driving cattle across the plains and guarding the herds against mountain lions and bands of rustlers.

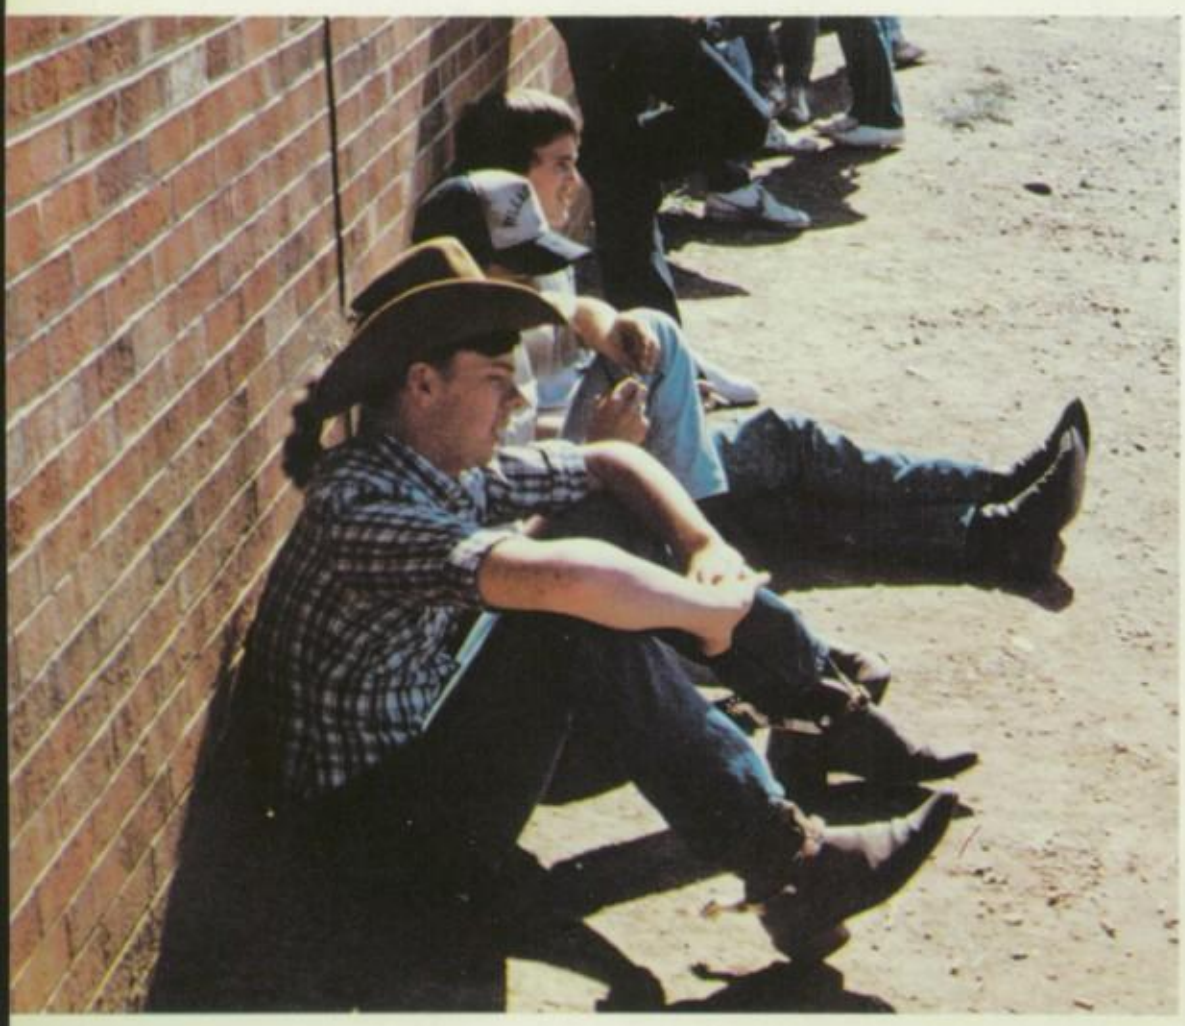
The clothing of the Cowboys had to be practical for their work, and most men wore the same plain garments day after day. The costume consisted of cowhide boots; levis, or jeans; a wool shirt; a jacket or vest; and a felt hat with a wide brim to shield their eyes, and a deep crown so that the hat would not blow off.

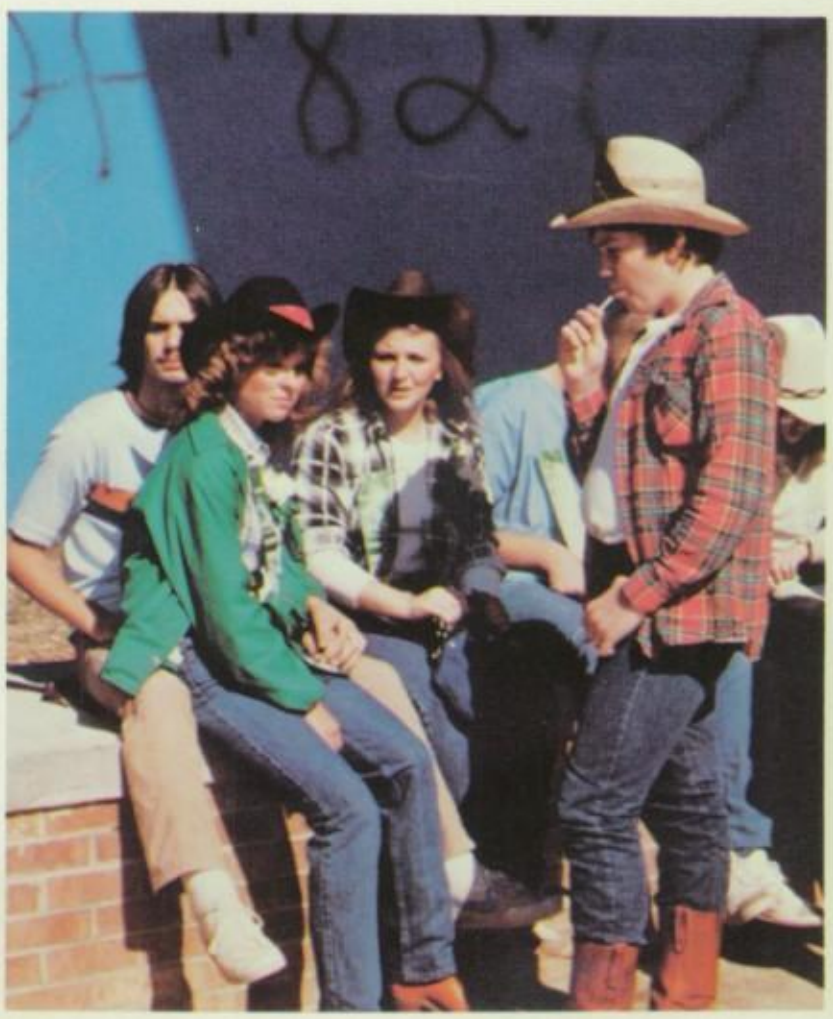
Farm families on the frontier lived quietly, but crime flourished in the mining camps and towns. The cardsharps, claim jumpers, con men, and desperadoes kept the marshals busy, and the citizens banded together in groups of vigilantes to capture and punish criminals. The Wild West had little difficulty living up to its nickname.

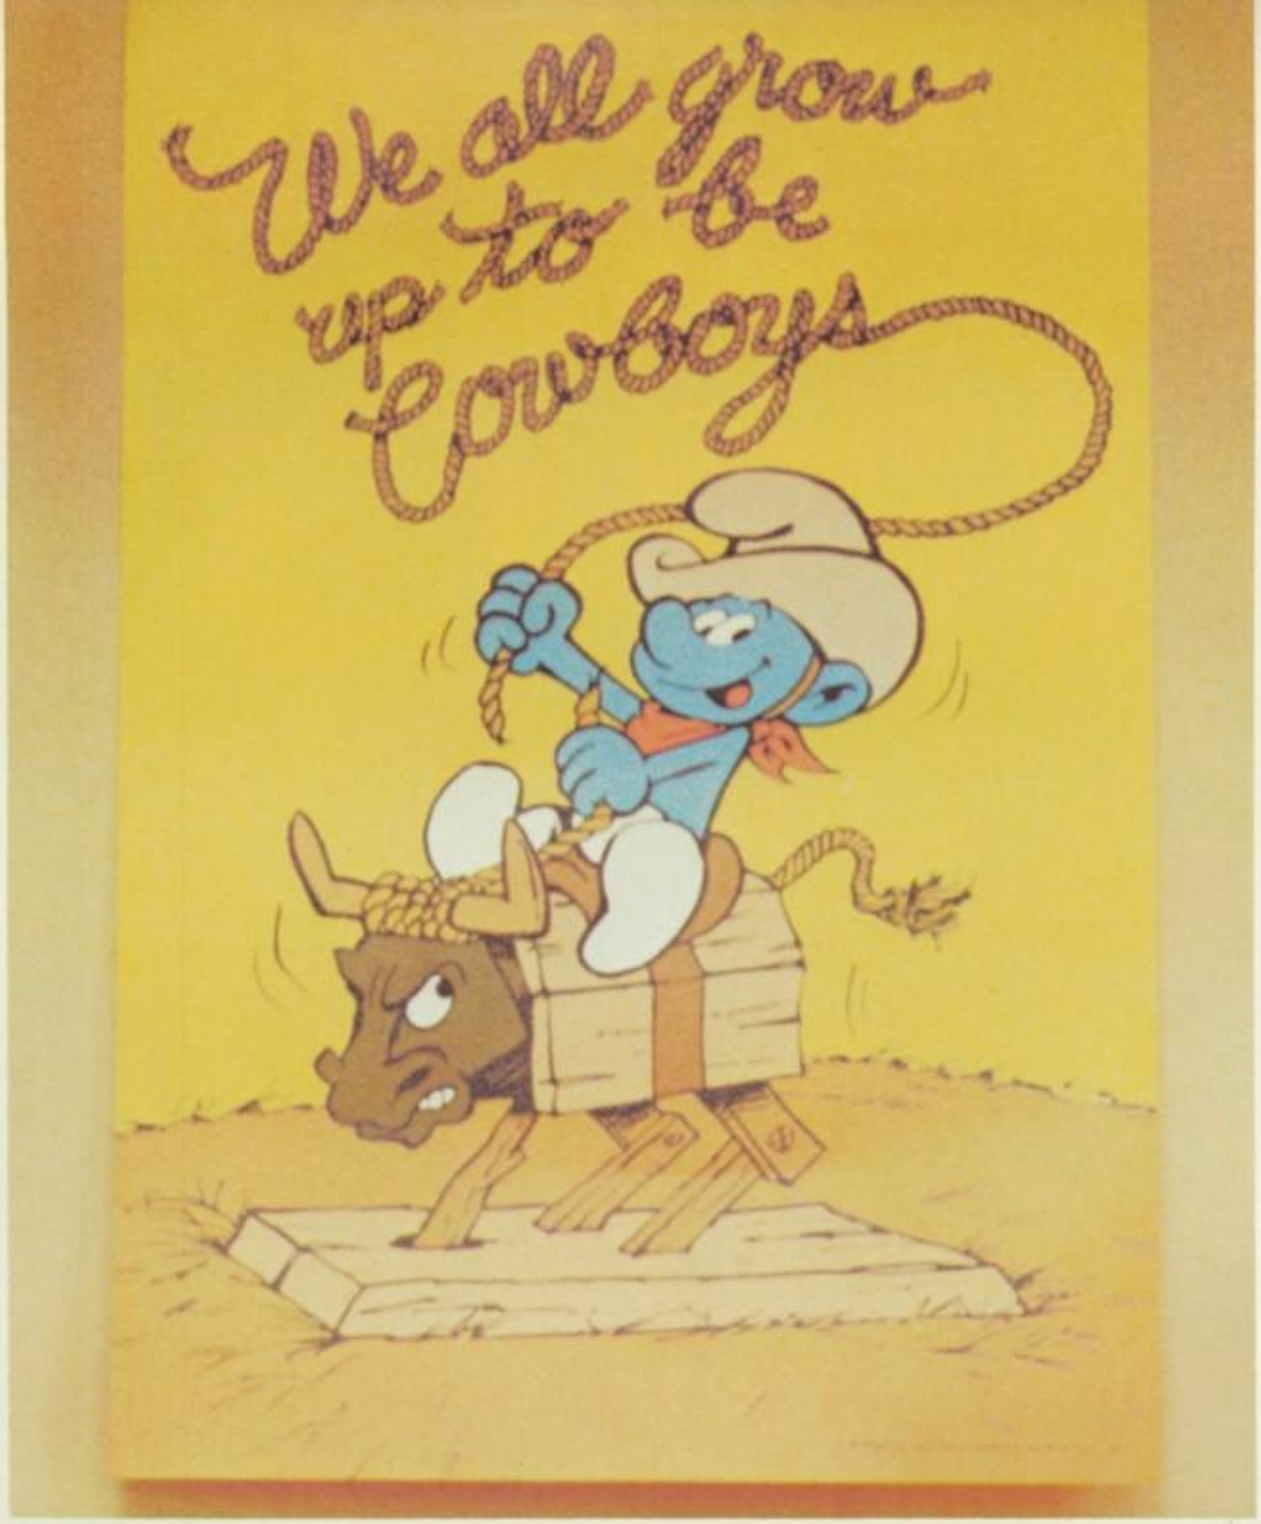
The frontier is gone now. Most of its mining camps have become empty ghost towns. Other settlements of the wild West have become peaceful communities and even big cities. But western frontier life left behind a great American tradition which the Cowboys of Southwest Guilford will carry on with pride.

Eric Nuckles, Worth Blair, and Edwin Ridge take a break after riding the range.

After a day of work, Mike Loflin, Sandy Russell, Evelyn Greene, and Jeff Armshaw pause for a spell.

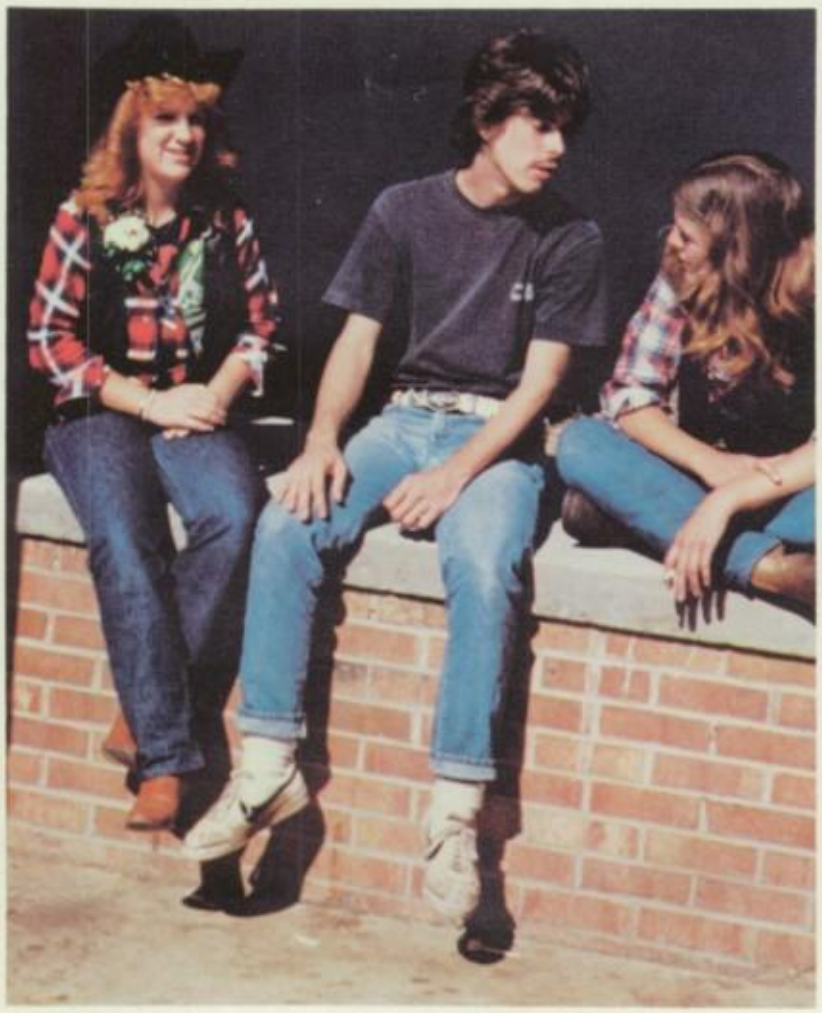


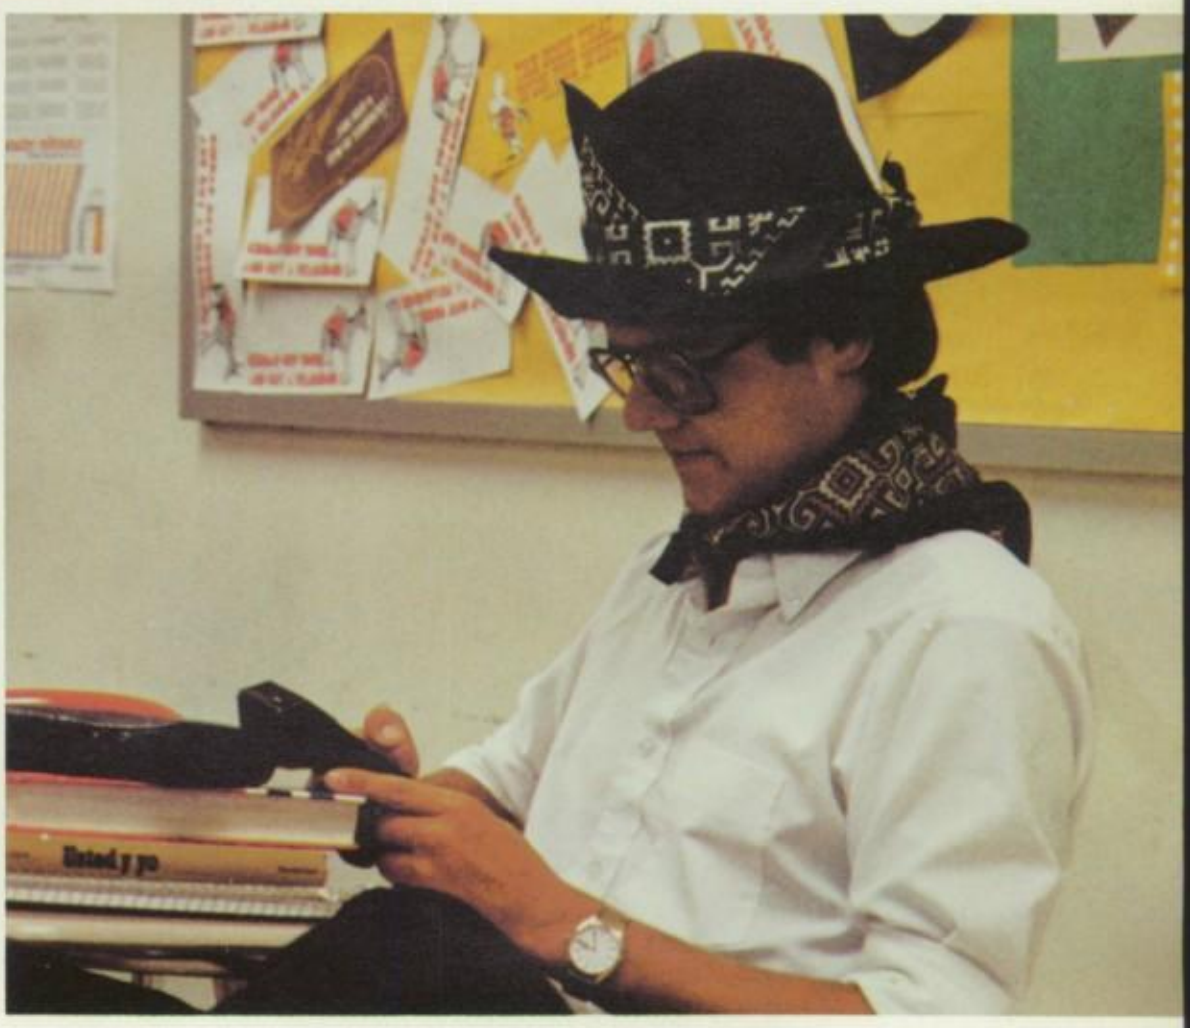




Joe Gravely and Liz Farr discuss Kim Armstrong's western attire.

Todd Hatfield calculates the risks of being an outlaw.



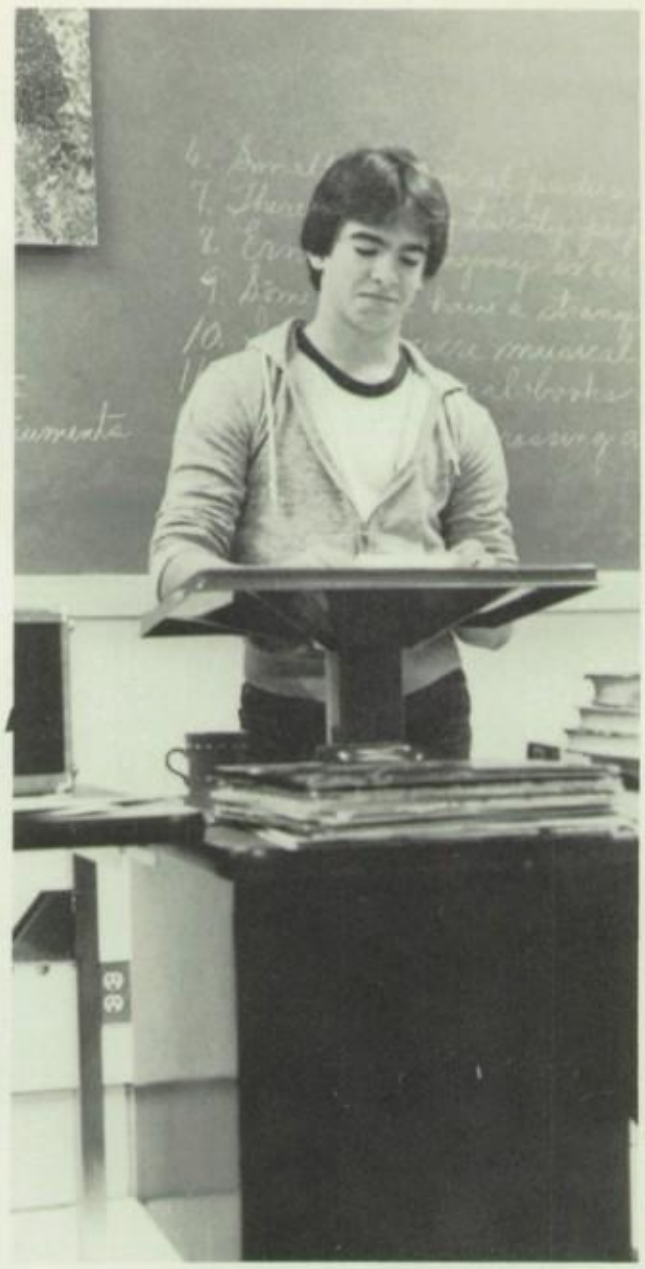


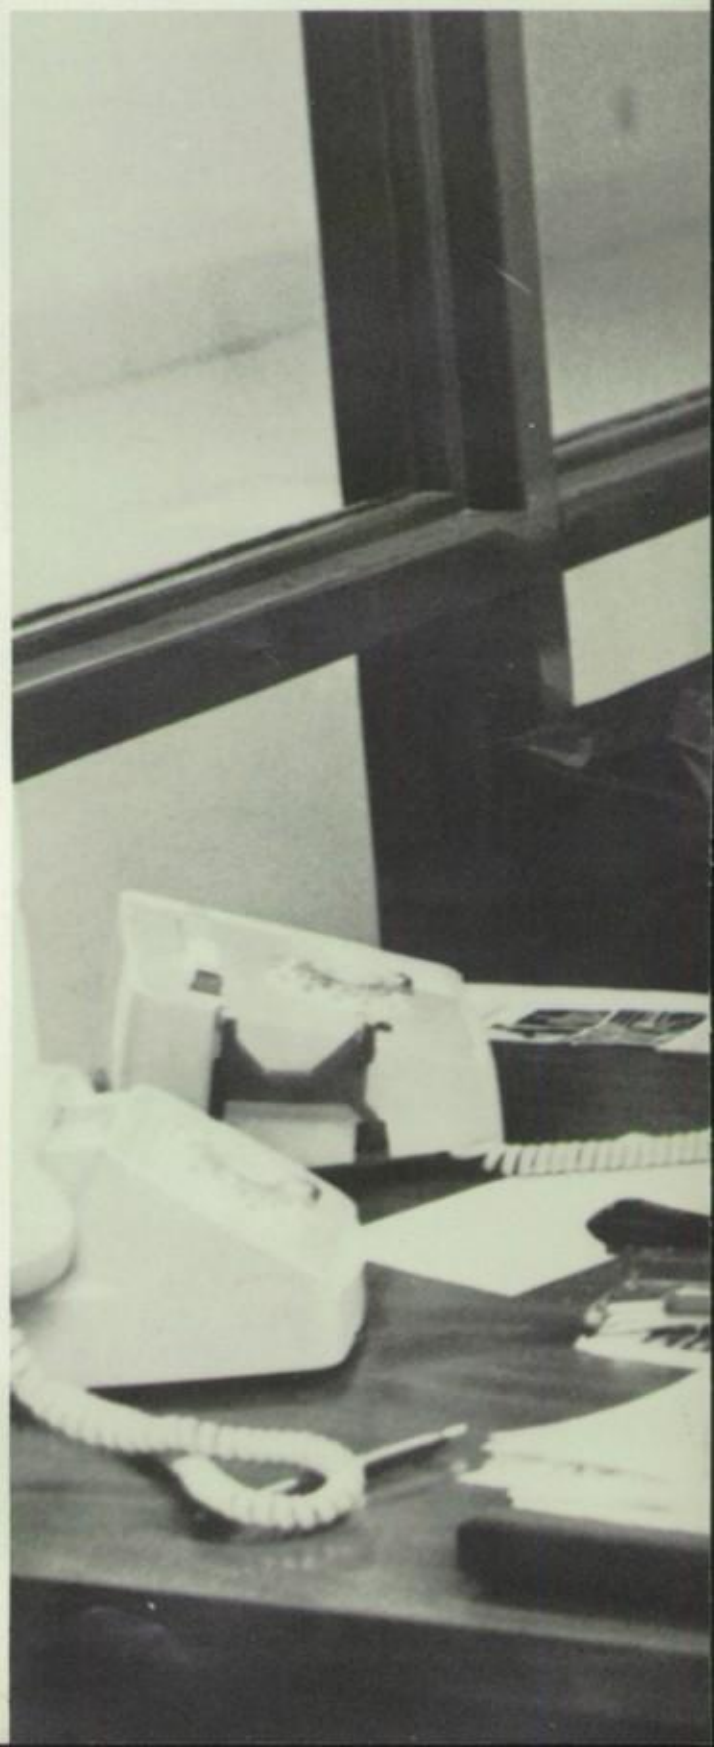
A DAY . . .

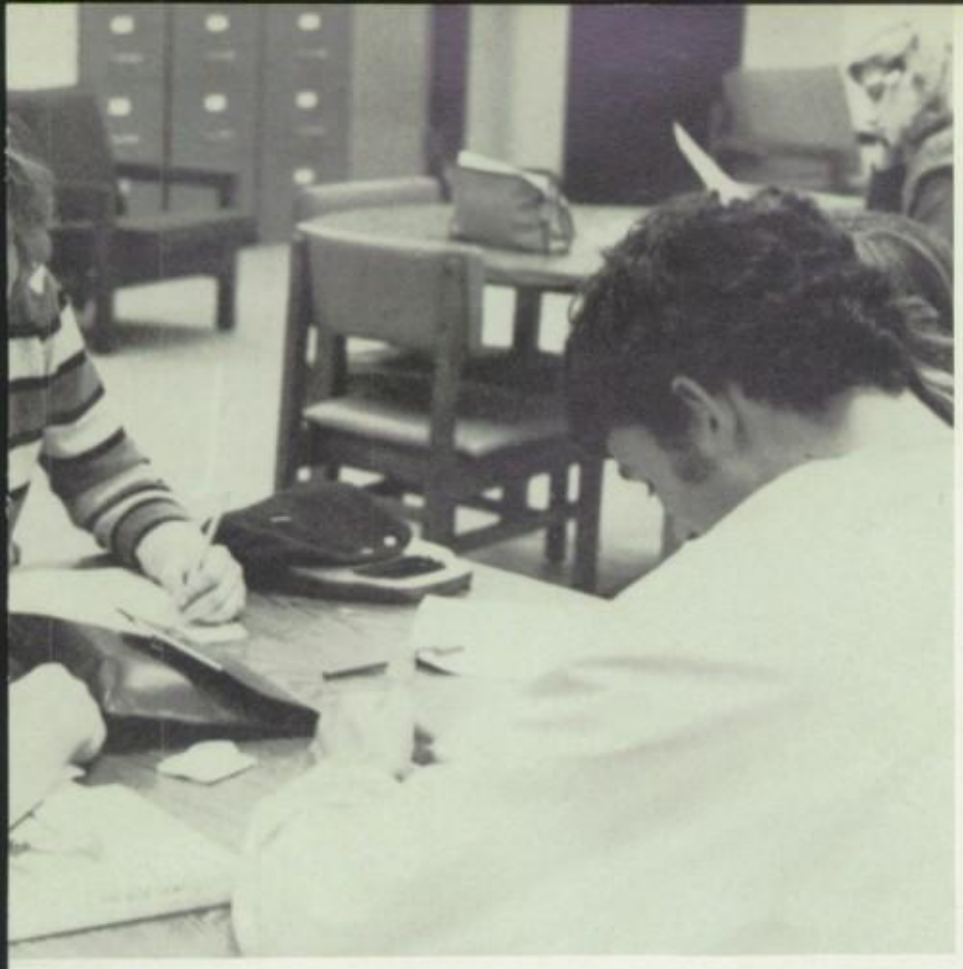
Has Eric Dugan done away with his teacher?

Mrs. Sheree Crane's lecture does not appear to captivate Kip Jackson.

Pete Mason relaxes, but in the office?







Darrin Eakins, Kim Hair, and Bob Wood study vigorously in the library.

Amy Rich's office job keeps her talking.

IN THE LIFE . . .

Jennifer Mosley and Charlotte Freeman take time off at the Fall Round-Up.

David Howell and Scott Lewallen are on the prowl.

Jamie Hamilton fills Amy Rich in on the latest scoop, while Amy focuses on the subject.

Cedric Rush picks the perfect place for his Biology homework.

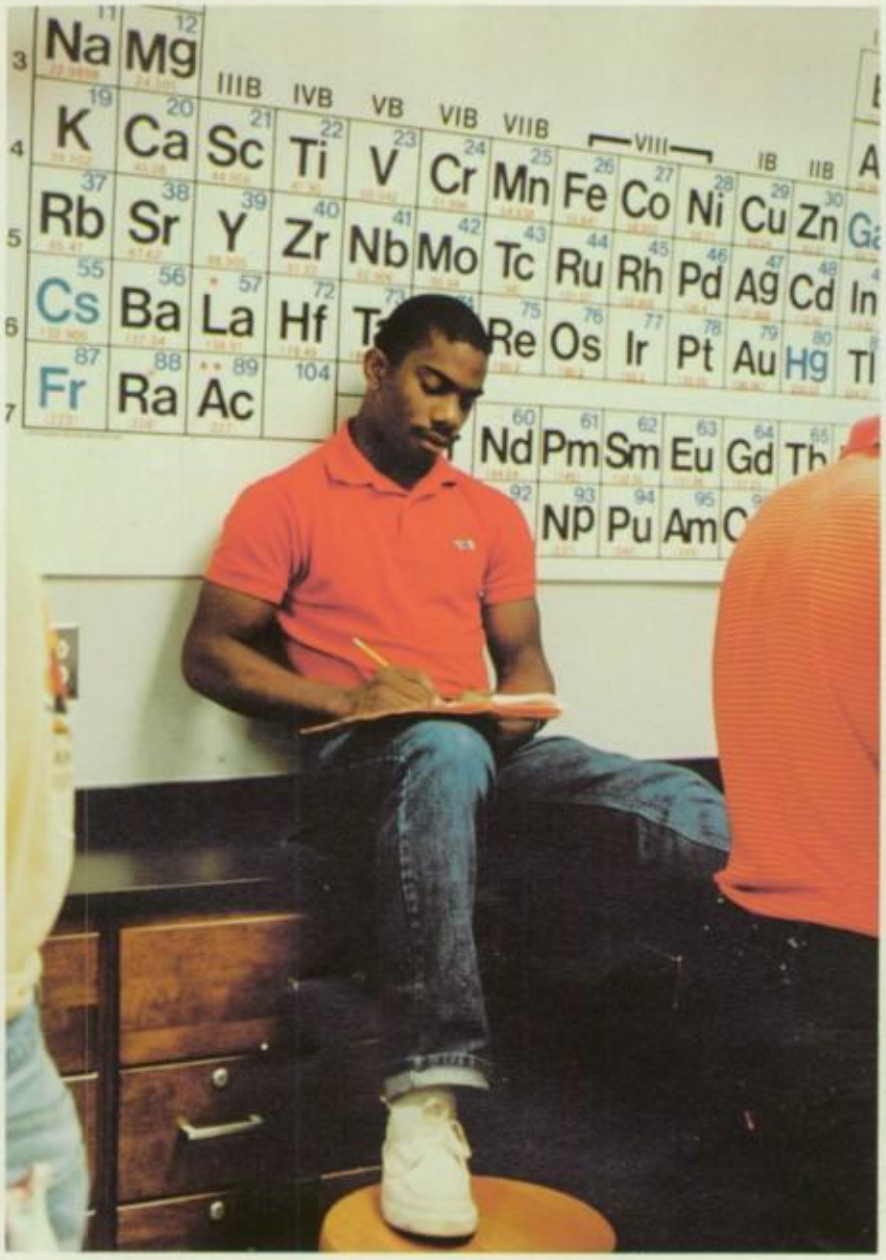
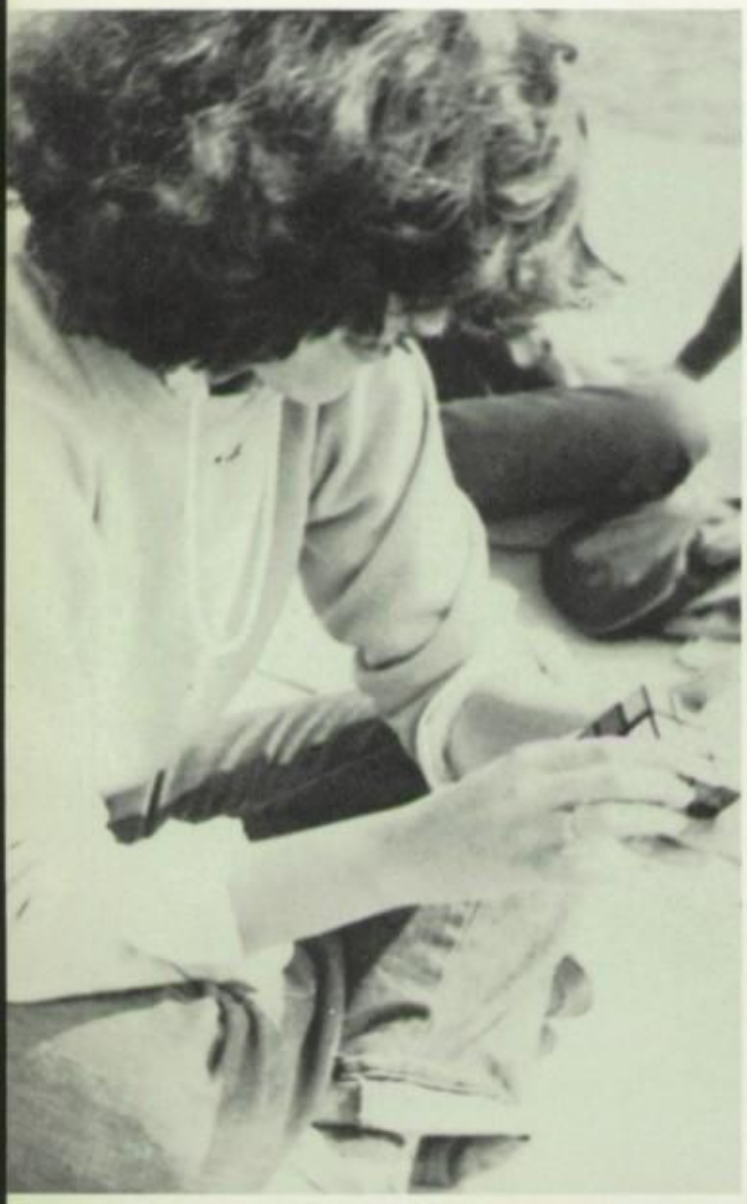
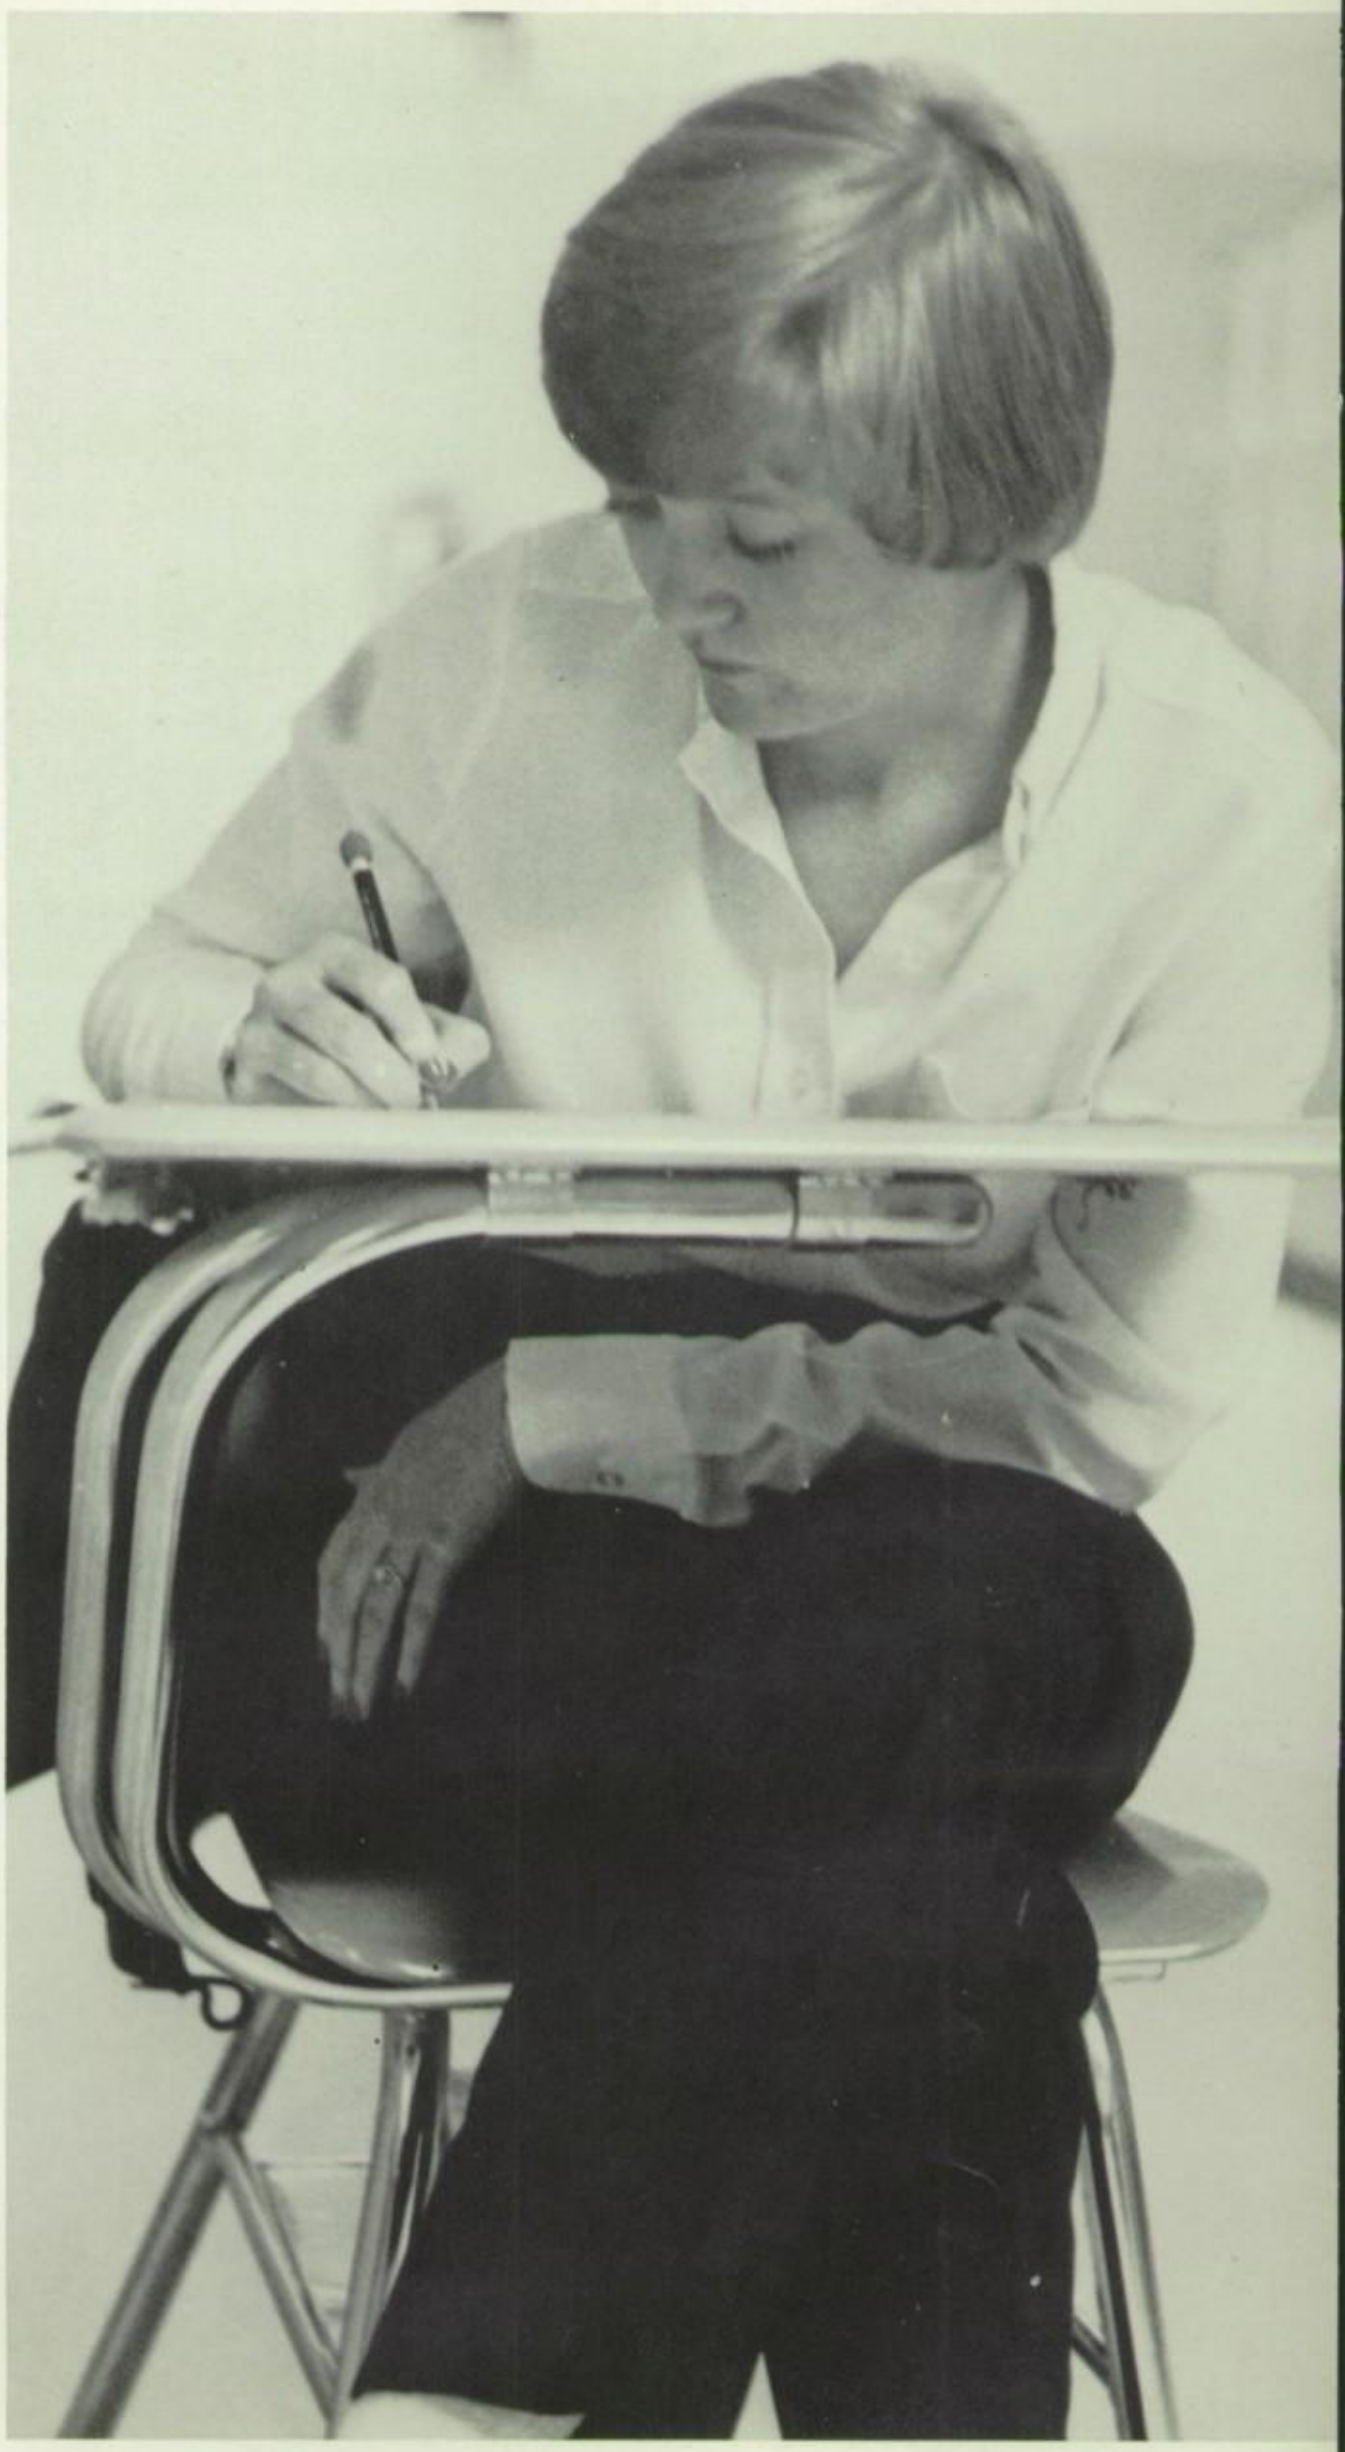
A little blue note keeps Debbie Jones and Wendy Gossett occupied.



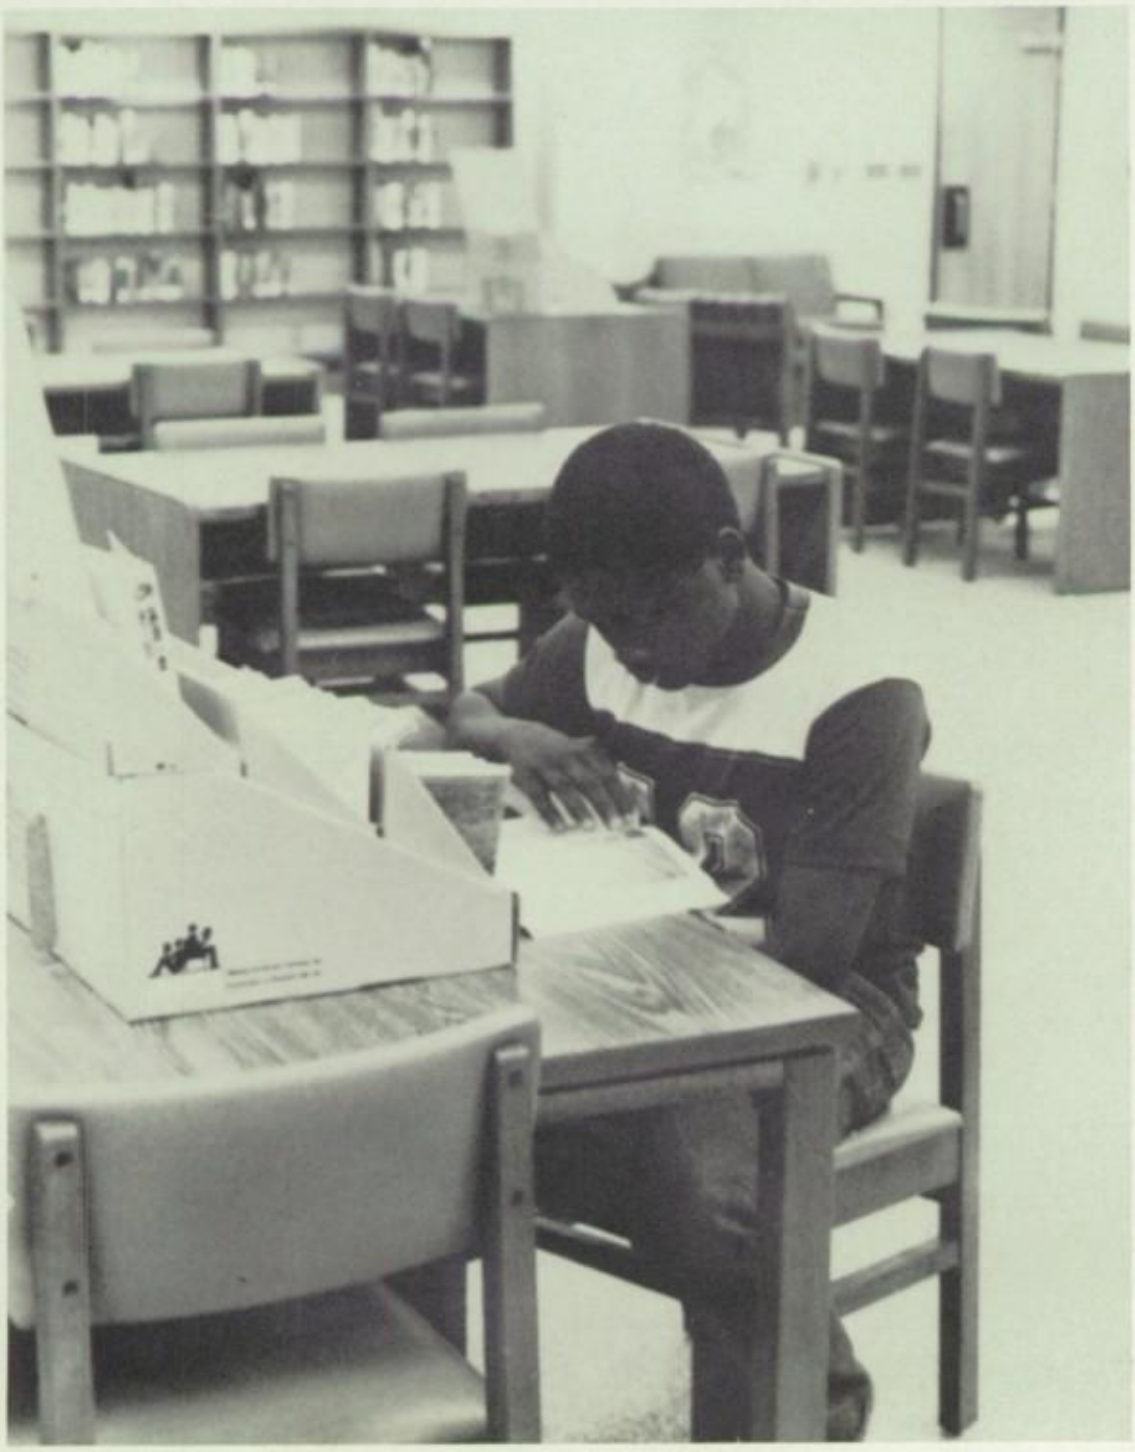
OF A COWBOY . . .





A "Rubik's Cube" drives Beth Holliday crazy.

Kim Green works diligently to complete a test.



Becky Fritz flips frantically through her notebook searching for who knows what.

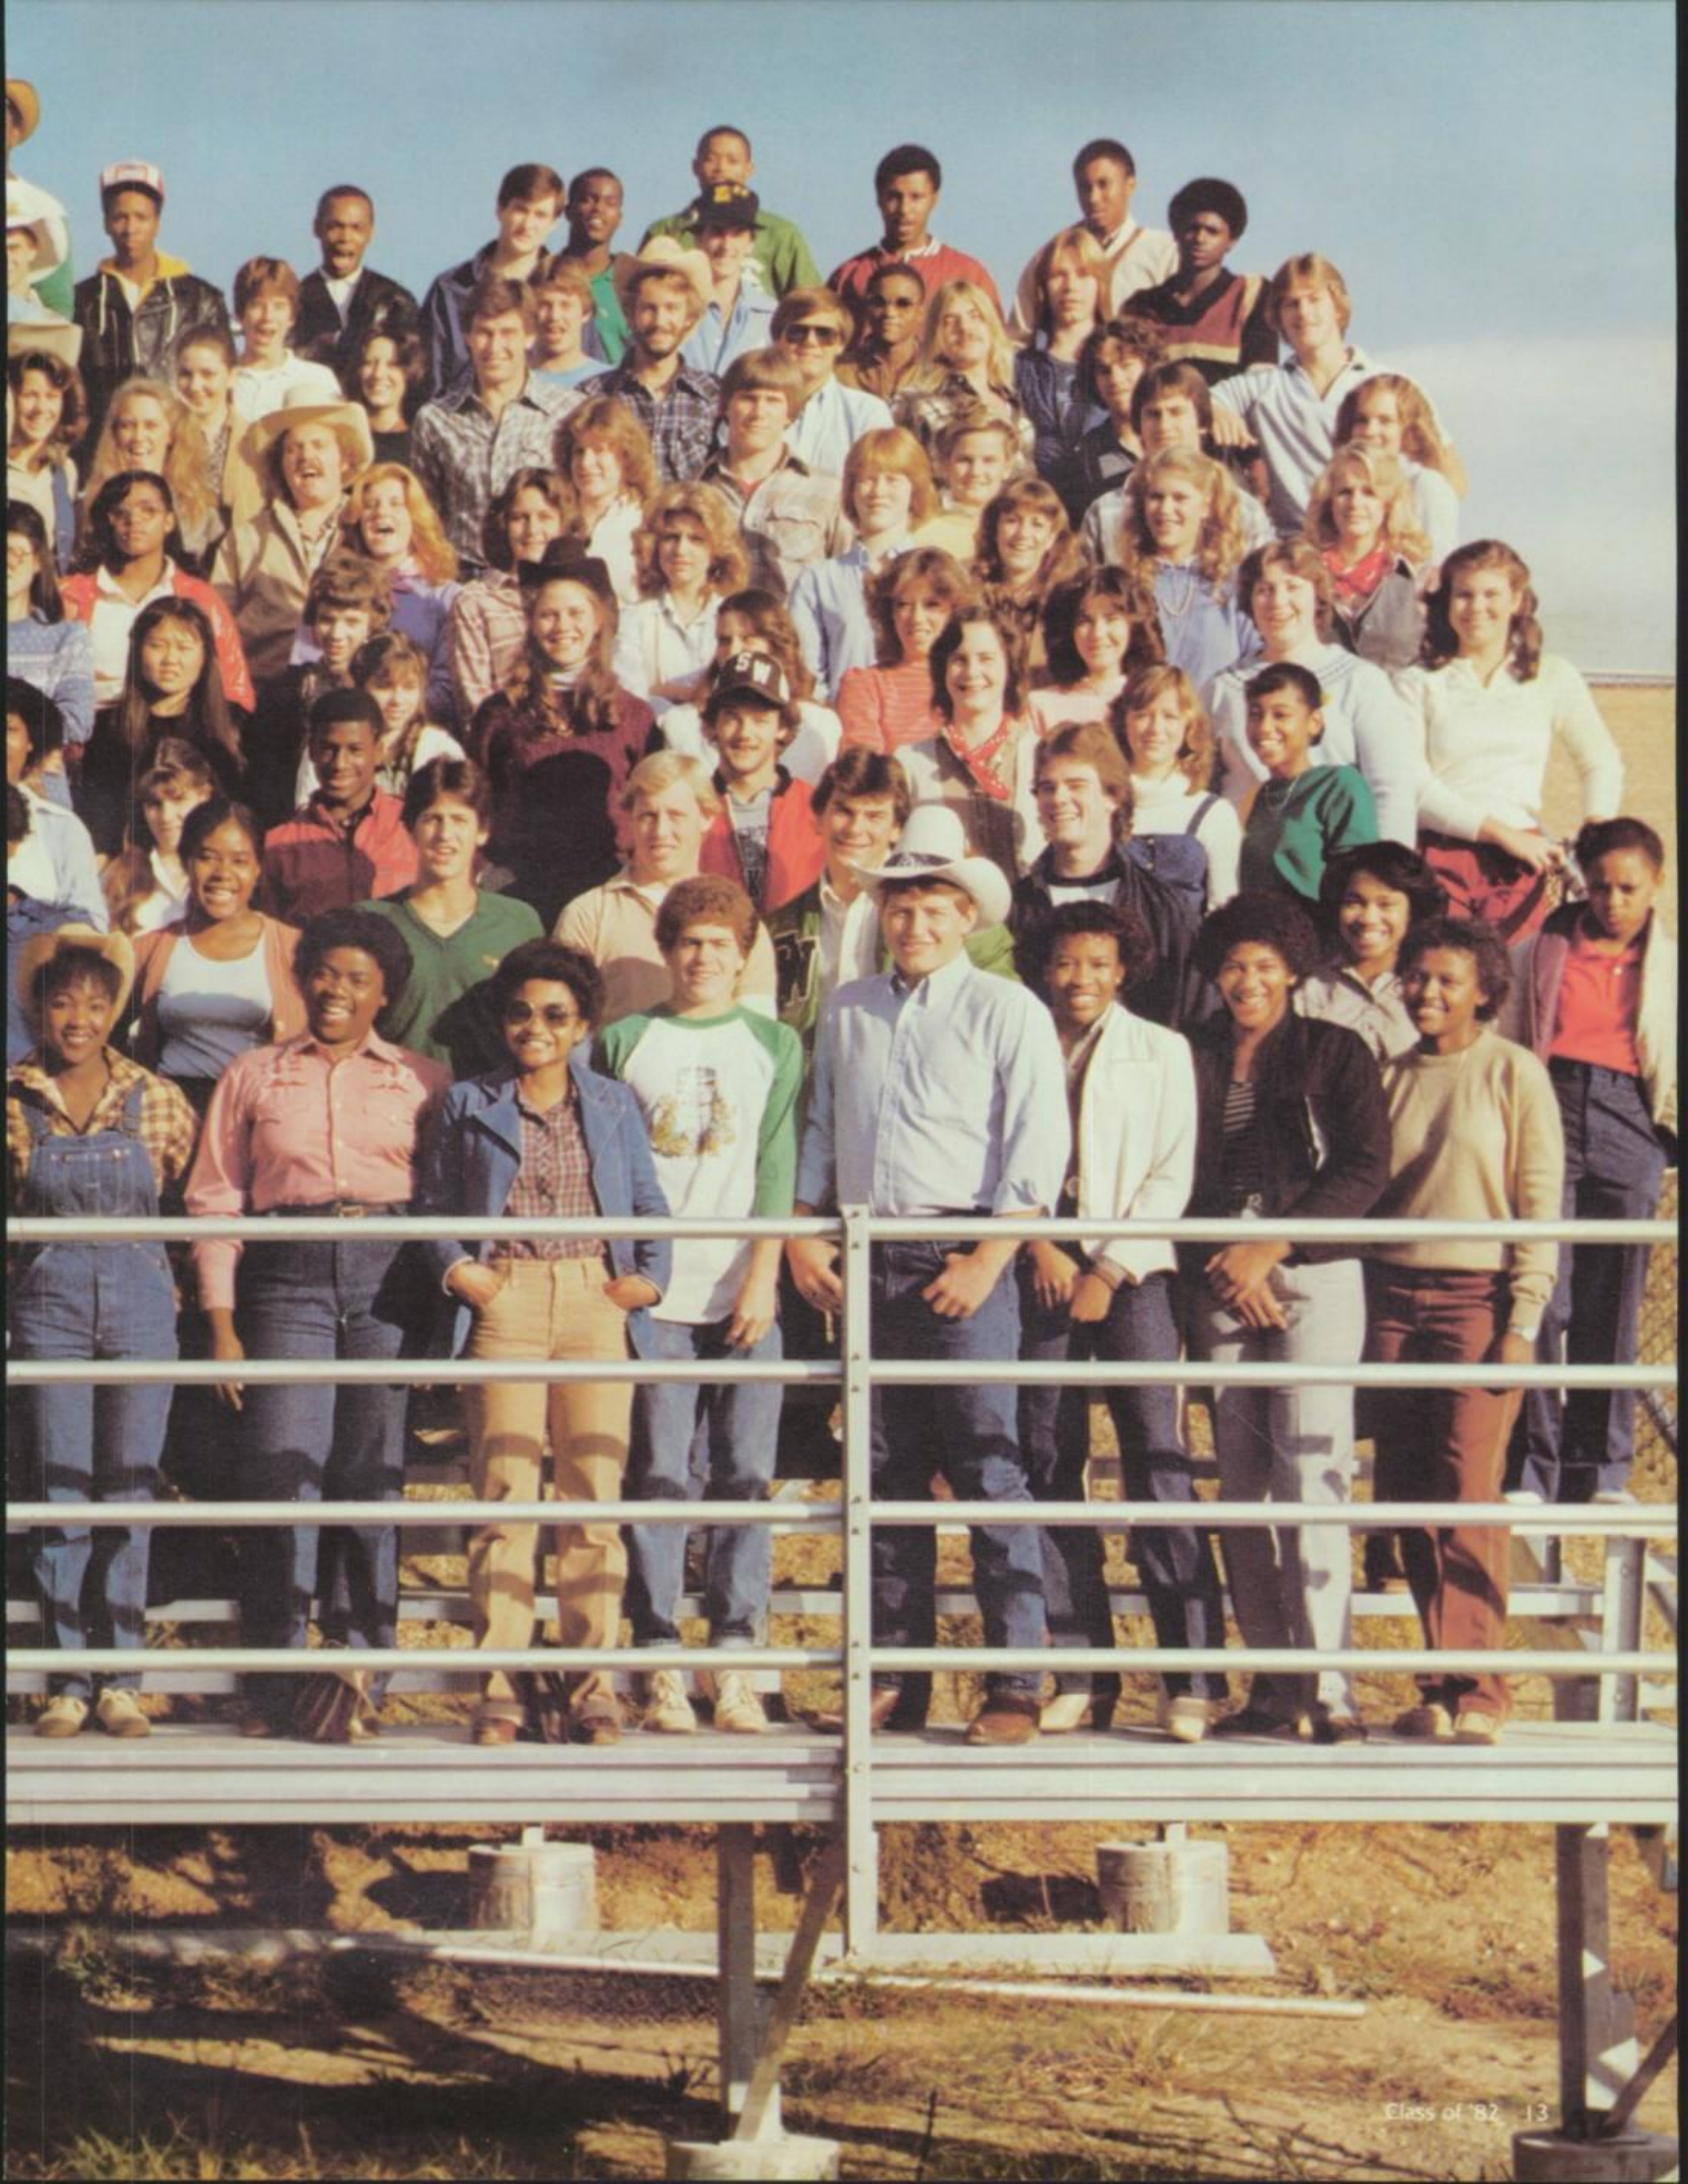
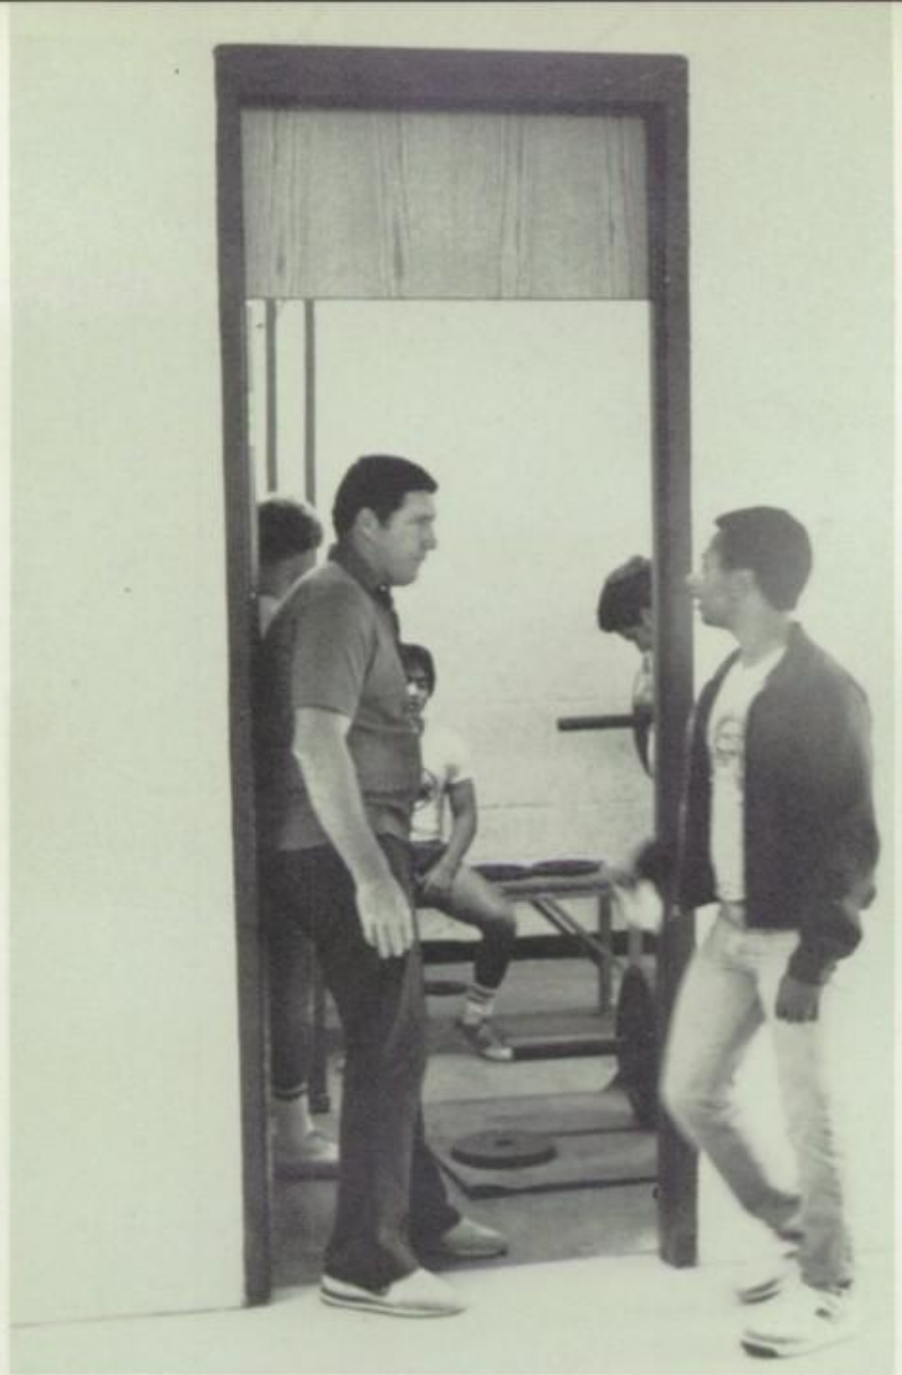
Wilbur Boulware finds the new material in the library to his liking.



RIDING THE RANGE!

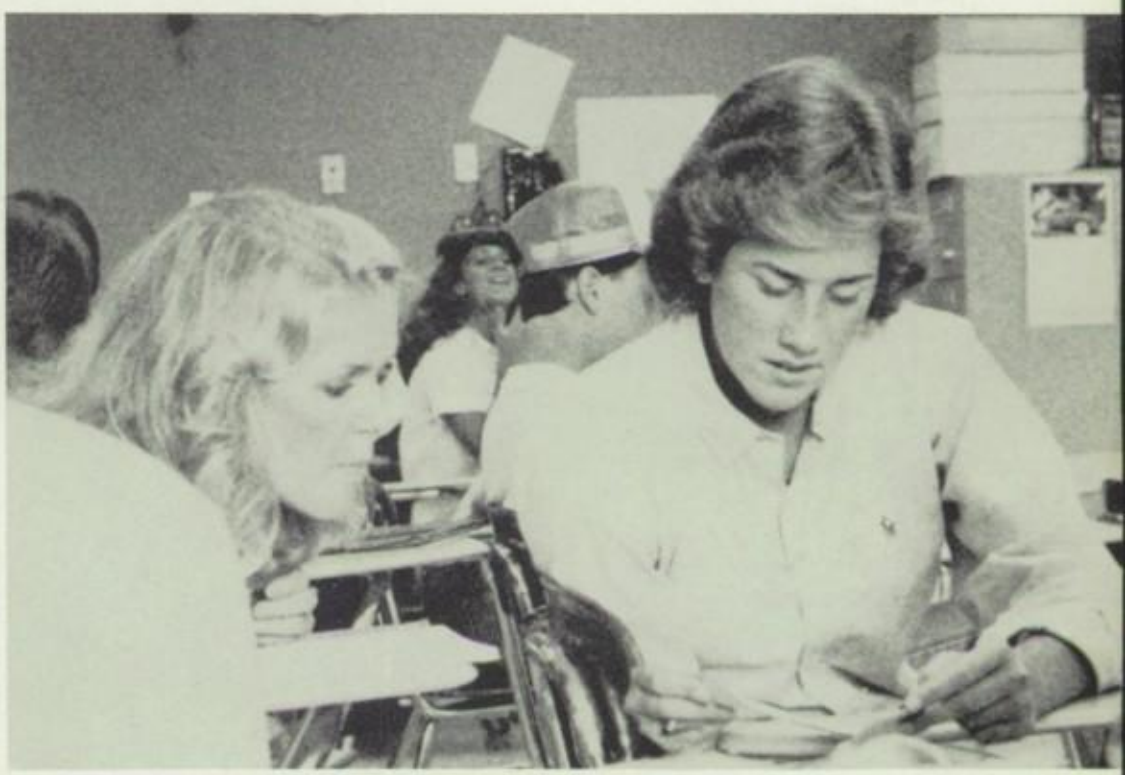
Tina Harrelson is totally immersed in a piece of artwork.

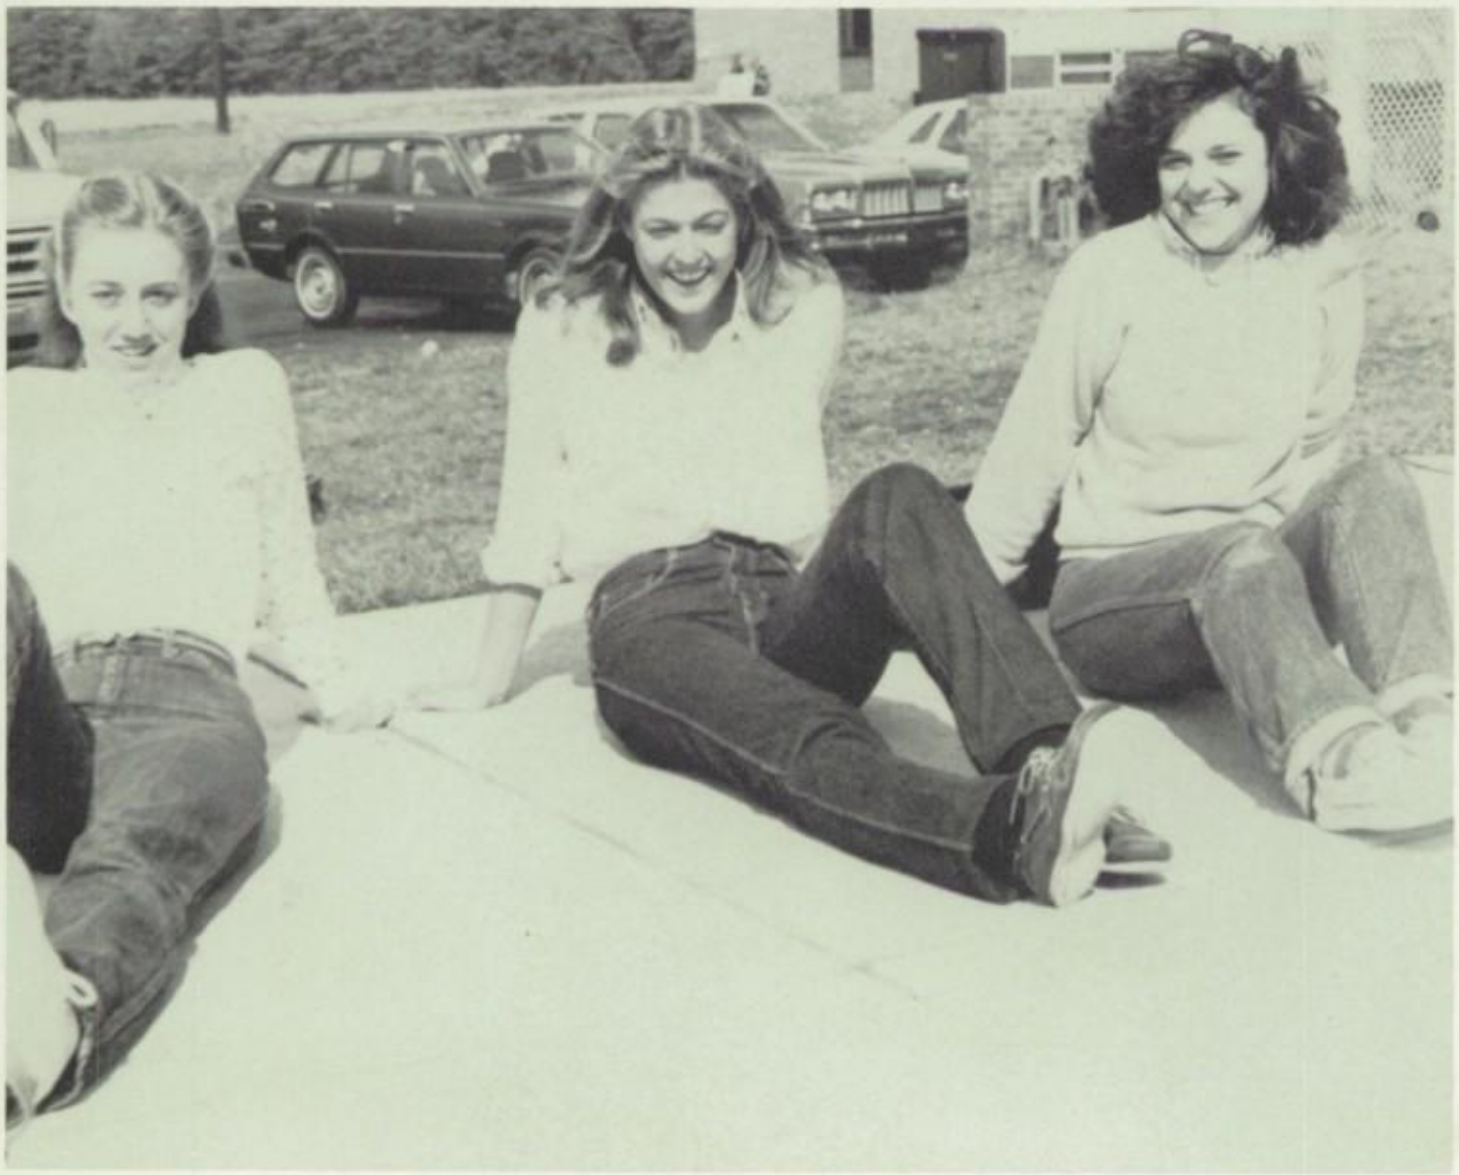


Tim Brown begs Coach Jim Coggins for admittance into the weight room.

Linda Johnson wants to help Dawn Burke inspect a magazine.

Pretending they're on the Riviera, Jenny Kletzin, Holly Howell, and Beth Holliday stretch out in the sun.





Amos Adams and Pete Mason "groove" to the Cowboy spirit.

WILD WILD WEST

Karen Berry rejoices in the spirit of '82.

This One's for You

"This One's for You" — these were the words of Leigh Ann Everhart on Saturday, May 16 as she dedicated the 1981 Prom to the Senior Class. The prom, prepared by a committee of hard-working Juniors, was held at Bryan Park where all attending feasted on scrumptious hors d' oeuvres and danced to the music of "Nyte-Lyfe." The highlight of the evening occurred when the Prom Court was announced. Wyvette Baker was crowned Prom Queen and with her escort, she initiated the dance dedicated to our 1981 graduating class.

E. Simmons and D. Freeman prove their sophistication by shunning the antics of L. West and D. Gardner.

Ann Brevard adds a final touch to her date's appearance.

Stewart Miller and Beth Ruscoe seem delighted by the elegance of the prom.

Carol Tweedy and Derek Crump enjoy a laugh between dances.

Lori Allen and Steve Riley dance the night away.

"Delicioso," exclaims Coach Coggins as he "munches out" on prom goodies.

BIG . . . BEASTLY . . . BEAUTIFUL?

It wasn't another rendition of the classic Beauty and the Beast; however, in this case the beauties WERE the beasts. On April 9, 1981, Southwest's Superstud Competition transformed into an event to be remembered by all, for better or for worse!

The festivities got underway with the stiff competition of the "Luscious Legs Contest." Gary "Glarice" Hickey relied on his gorgeous pair of legs to walk away with the winning tally of votes.

Finally the magical evening arrived. The contestants' stomachs were filled with butterflies — and pancakes! A scrumptious pancake supper preceded the event.

The lights were dimmed and the stage set — but not the audience. Summoned straight from Radio City Music Hall were the Happy Hoofers. Debbie Broughman, Patty Callahan, Suzy Davis, Leigh Ann Everhart, Michelle Funderburk, Pam Greer, Linda Johnson, Debbie Jones, Amy Little, and Leslie Tester all joined forces to strut their stuff on stage.

The beauties were as talented as they were gorgeous (in most cases). After an awesome display of their expertise, the contestants went on to give their true confessions to some personal questions.

Tension mounted as Tonya Two-Faced made her final appearance as Superstud '80 and tearfully prepared to relinquish her beloved crown. The crowd went wild as the beautiful Barbara Bondage claimed her title as Southwest's Superstud 1981. The contestants bid a final farewell and left the stage undaunted. After all, beauty IS only skin deep . . .

Barbara Bondage "knows she's bad" as she strolls down the aisle making her opening appearance.

The sensational Southwest Superstud Competitors: (Front Row) Barbara Bondage (B. Shreve), Tonya Two-Faced (T. Fuller), Valerie Virgin (V. Faust), Tonka Toy (T. Loflin), Glarice Hickey (G. Hickey), Anita Morehead (A. Haskins), Tonya Touche (T. Collins). (Row 2) Stephanie Streetwalker (S. McCachern), C. Phyllis Scabbes (K. Hall), Felicia Fettish (F. Cossio), Bobbi DeBiche (M. Scurria). (Row 3) Dorothy Dogit (D. Farlow), Sally Sleazy (M. Jordan), Madame X (T. Fite) and Juanita Wedgie (J. Farlow).

Juanita Wedgie flashes her most sensuous look to a bedazzled audience.

Donning the latest in fashion swimwear, several contestants feel that true beauty should never be hidden.

Juanita Wedgie, Dorothy Dogit, and Bobbi DeBiche display the poise and dignity found only in a Superstud Contestant.

THE OLDTIMERS

Characters are an essential part in the production of a play, just as the Oldtimers are a significant part in the growth of the Wild West. Without their actions of riding ahead and clearing the trails for future followers, our roads would have been much more rugged.

Clearing the trails was not always an easy job, however. It took a certain strength in leadership, determination, and hard work. They accepted challenges which brought them recognition through awards and achievements. They were always there to set an example for their fellow Cowboys, and when things got rough they rode together and lassoed the impossible. Their spirit was undaunted and held the pride of a true Cowboy.

As they ride into greater and even more challenging horizons, we know that their hearts still lie in Cowboy Country.

A devilish glee spreads over Donna Bolding's face as she speculates the future at East Carolina University.

Participating in the excitement of Homecoming is Oldtimer, Angela McNatt, with senior, Carey Springs.

The Seniors perform their winning skit, "Be True to Your School," for the Homecoming assembly.

Tommy Conklin and Bobby Callahan take it easy during Homecoming week.

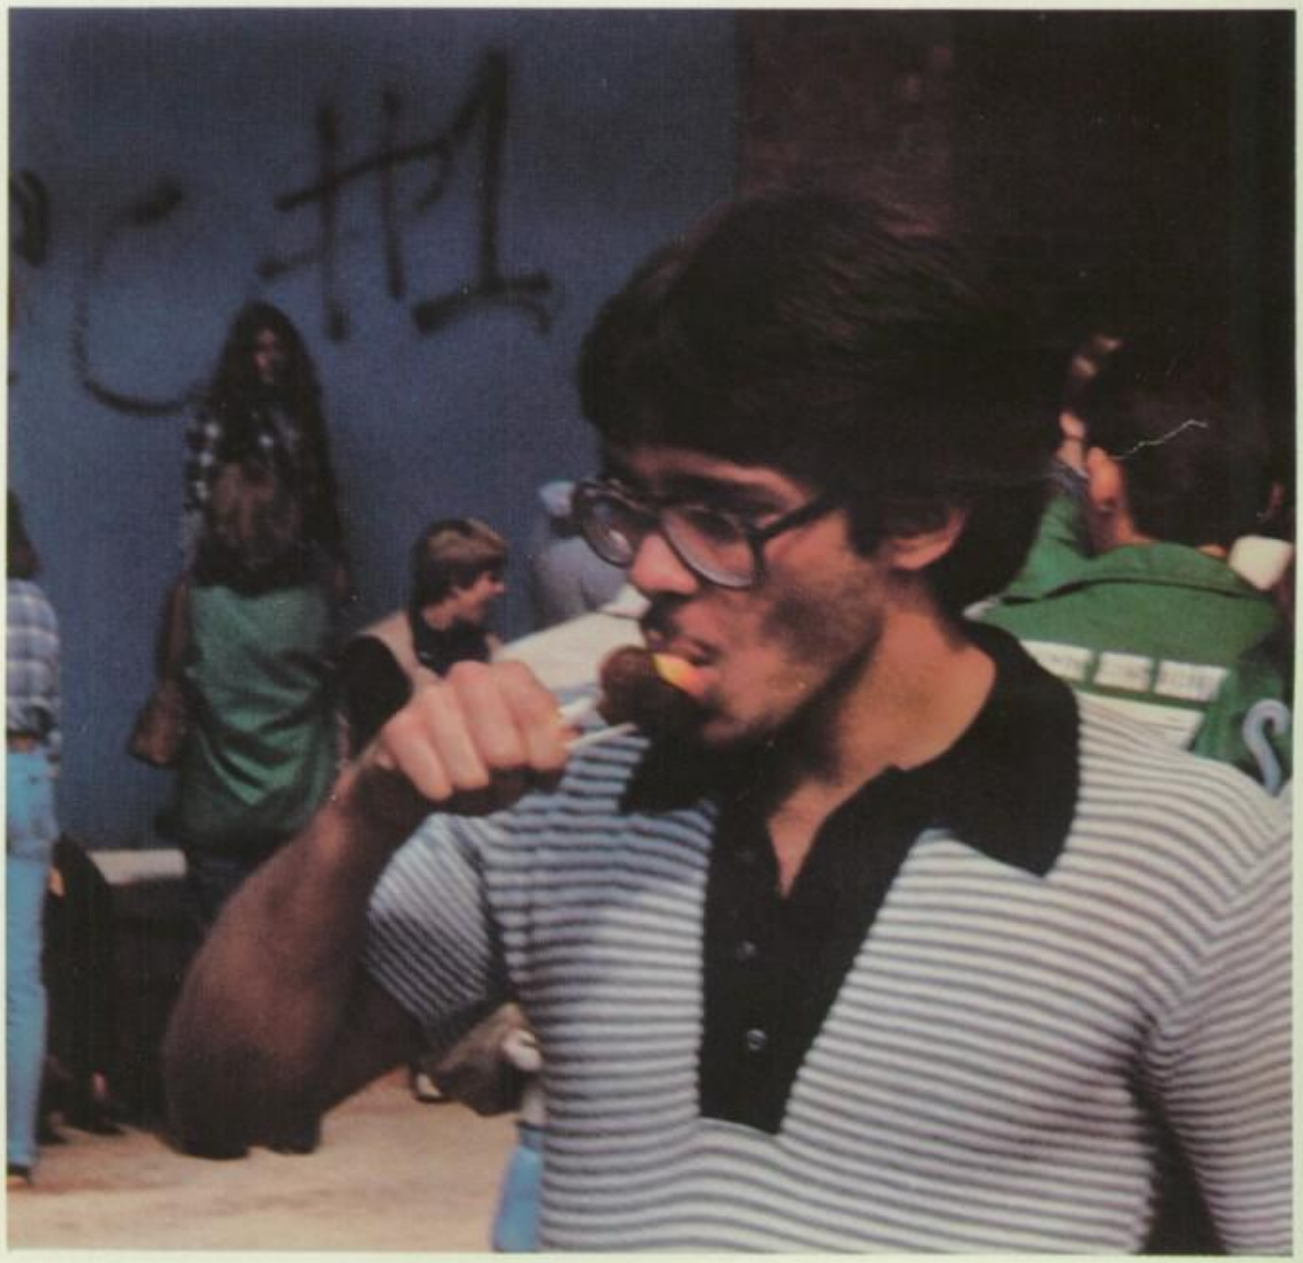
Back at the Ranch

The days before Homecoming offered everyone an enjoyable diversion from the usual schedule. The events during this year's spirit week entitled "The Best of Times," included several activities made possible through the efforts of our Student Council.

The week began with Lick'em Day and the collection of money by class officers in their respective jail houses. Both of these activities continued throughout the week. Points were given for the number of students participating in Green and White Day, Bandana Day, Cowboy Dress-up Day and the sales of corsages. The winner of this year's poster contest depicting Homecoming was Jerry Long who received a ten dollar prize.

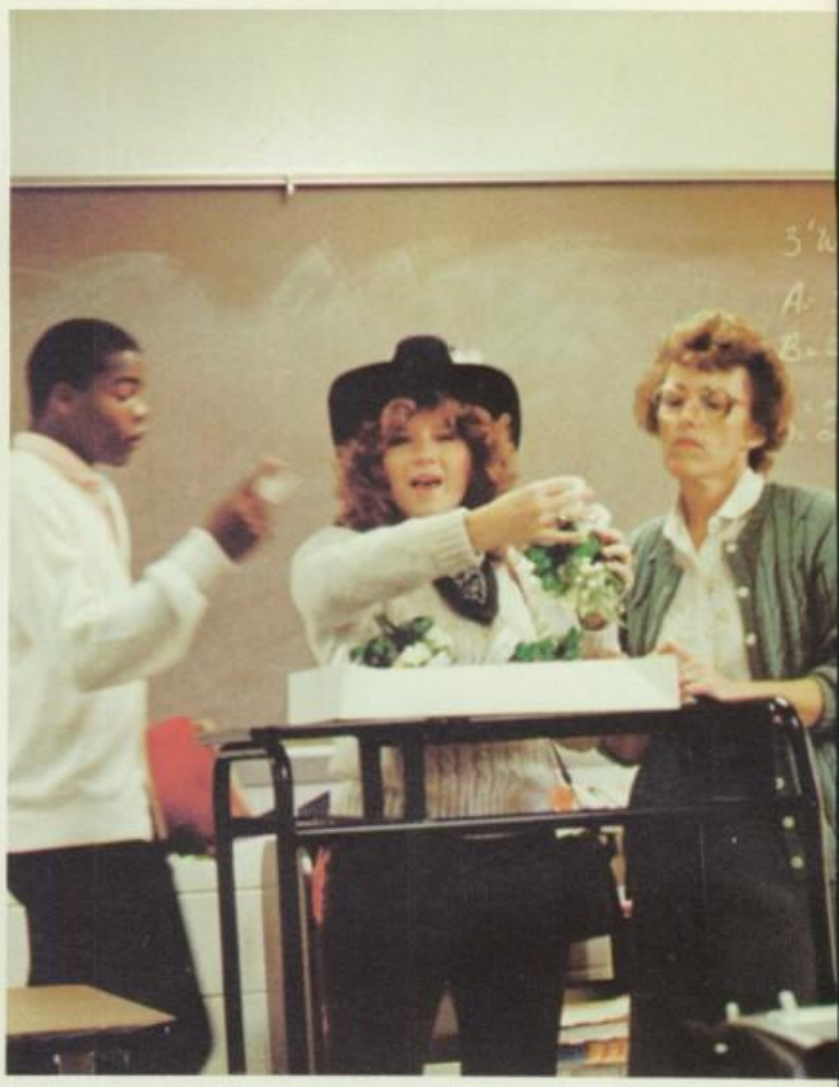
The pep rally on the last day was the climax of Homecoming week during which each class presented a skit involving school spirit. Although the Senior class won this competition, the Sophomore class accumulated the most points for the week. As winners of spirit week the Sophomore class was presented a plaque awarded by the Student Council.

Of course, all of these events led up to the Homecoming game and half-time activities. However, the week before Homecoming created a combination of academics, athletics, and school spirit that made those days, indeed, "The Best of Times."



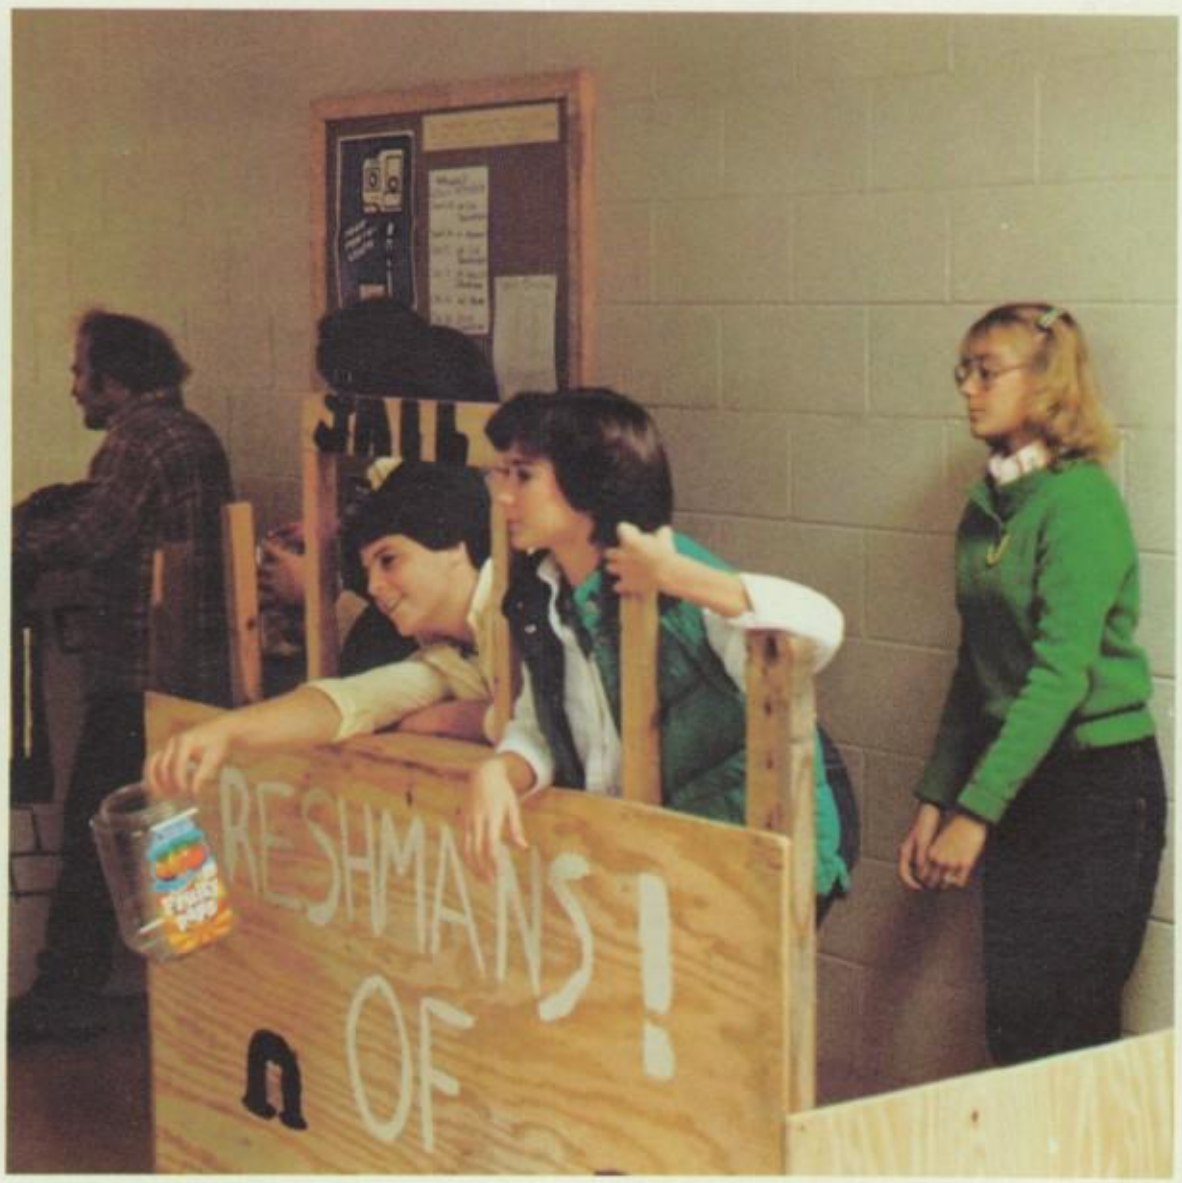
Lick'em Day is an obvious favorite of James Terrell.

Michael Whittington goes to extremes on Hat Day, but Scott Jordan and Andy Green do not seem surprised.



Gail Austin delivers corsages in Mrs. Lore's class as Jerry Pate walks behind.

Wendy Gossett "checks out" Ken Gordon as he displays his collection of bandanas.



Freshmen Angela Twisdale, Christi Friesinger, and Lynn Wright coax money from passers-by.

The Younger Side of Radiance

One of the most special and memorable times of the year is Homecoming night, a night that could never be more special than to those fifteen girls who served on the court. Five girls from each of the junior, sophomore, and freshman classes were chosen by members of their class as representatives. They proved by their charm, personality, and beauty that there truly is a younger side of radiance.

Karen Berry, newly-crowned Queen, stands before a cheering crowd with escort and brother, Allan Berry.

The night that everyone had been waiting for had finally arrived, and with it came one of the first, crisp evenings of fall. Southwest celebrated its third Homecoming October 16, and many people were there. They were enthusiastically cheering the Cowboys to victory, with Southwest running up the score of 54-6. The night was filled with much excitement, and soon it was known for certain that the Cowboys would carry off their seventh victory of the season. Everyone settled back to watch the sparkle-n-splendor of the Homecoming Attendants. This was the first game in Southwest's history that the football team was able to see a half-time show!

The band played with much pride and spirit for their viewers. The music included various songs such as our homecoming theme, "These are the Best of Times" by Styx, and also played was the Kenny Rogers hit, "Lady."

A hush fell over the stands as each girl and her escort were announced. As the moments ticked away, each girl was standing in nervous anticipation wondering who would be the lucky girl crowned Homecoming Queen for 1981-82. Curiosity was quenched as Maid of Honor, Gwen DeBerry, was announced and the Queen was Karen Berry, both Seniors.

It was a night full of laughter and memories that ended with a victory dance in which all Cowboys were invited to attend.

A surprised Gwen DeBerry, with escort Dennis Adams, is named as The Cowboy's new Maid of Honor.

Master of Ceremonies for the half-time activities were Suzy Davis and Brad Shreve.

HOME ON THE RANGE

The second annual Fall Round-up, sponsored by the Southwest Parent/Teacher Organization, marked the beginning of the 1981-82 school year.

The PTO organized several activities designed to raise money for the school. Among these were a pie throw, a dunking booth, a bake sale, a five kilometer run, and an auction which was held in the cafeteria. There were also several contests such as a Mello-Yello Chug-a-lugging Contest, a Tobacco Spitting Contest, and a Best-Dressed Cowboy/Cowgirl Contest. Entertainment for that night featured a Battle of the Bands. Food supplied by the PTO included popcorn, hot dogs, pizza and drinks.

The Fall Round-up, planned as a fund-raiser, proved as well to be an enjoyable event for all attending.

Brenda Lee gives Tracy Lucas the moral support she needs as she prepares to take the plunge.

Caught in a rare moment of silence, Jim Coggins realizes that working at the pie throw really takes the cake.

Surrounded by a host of onlookers, Jeff Burke aims for his target in the pie throw.

Dana Grissett and Carson Sellers enjoy the Round-up in style.

Two Round-up volunteers prepare to transform the faces of their patrons.

After a prosperous afternoon at the Round-up, B.J. Hughes displays his prizes.

Cheering, yelling, and screaming the Cowboy name; letting people around know that there is "Cowboy" in your blood. This is school spirit.

The spirited Cowboys run through the halls wearing boots, hats, and bandanas of all shapes and sizes. They go to Pep Rallies sponsored by the cheerleaders, not just to get out of class, but to get riled up for the upcoming event.

The spirited Cowboys stand out in a crowd. They are the first ones to shout with the cheerleaders and the last ones to leave the event. They can not sit still when the band strikes up the fight song; it brings about a desire in them to dance and cheer.

As the cheer goes, "You can't fight what you feel. The Cowboy spirit is oh, so real!"

Greg Byerly and Terry Ingram make an amusing couple dancing at a Pep Rally.

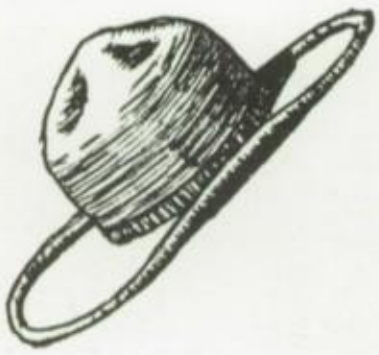
Leslie Tester makes sure Karen Berry's hair is perfect before the cheerleaders entertain the school with a Pep Rally.

Troy Fite has fun exhibiting his school spirit.

Even Unknowns can become Cowboys!

Gail Austin cheers ferociously for the Cowboys.

COME SUNDOWN . . . .



The long stretch of time between the 8:25 a.m. and 3:15 p.m. bells seemed as endless as an Oklahoma prairie. Each Cowboy trudged through his duties with gusto, but at quitting time he was ready for a bit of relaxation, fun or just plain "horsin' around." Whether at home, school, or out on the town, the time spent "after hours" was precious to all. Some chose to spend it with special friends, family, or just in quiet solitude. No matter how or where these hours were drifted, "come sundown," the cowboys were on their own.

Two students leisurely flip through the selection of albums at an area record shop.

A group of Cowboys prepare to flee campus at the 3:15 bell.

STRIKE UP THE BAND

"Strike up the band," is a saying that was often heard during the days of the Old West. Thanks to the outstanding performances and true dedication of the Southwest band, flag corps, and our majorette, Kim McCoy, it is a saying still enjoyed.

These students, led by director Mr. Bing Elliot, practiced long hours during hot summer days, after school, and even during holidays for perfection.

The band, always excited and full of energy, has contributed greatly to our pride and school spirit. By displaying their spirit in the form of music, they have spread enthusiasm to every Cowboy fan!

When it came to creating and maintaining Southwest's outstanding traditions, our school newspaper, the Western Star, left little to be desired. In less than two years the Western Star had become an important part of academic development at Southwest.

At the beginning of this year, members of the Western Star Staff and advisor Mrs. Laura Boyles attended a newspaper workshop held at Elon College. They submitted editions of last year's newspaper for judging and won two awards of distinction.

This year's first publication covered a wide range of topics including student's summer activities, changes in the administration and teaching staff, and the annual Fall Round-Up. This first edition indicated another successful and rewarding year for the Western Star which gave us no reason to read between the lines.

Editor of the Western Star, Jamie Newman, discusses layout designs with reporter, Brian Peek.

Days before a deadline, reporters Sheri Byrd and Kara Winchester check over copy with circulation manager, Russell Cotton.

Mrs. Laura Boyles plays an important role on the Star staff as she directs her students' energies towards more productive goals.

HOT OFF

Dedication, endurance, and hard work are only a few of the many characteristics that it takes to compile a year's worth of memories into one book. The New Horizons Annual Staff was able to give each student a summary of their 1981-82 school year. This was done by capturing special moments and memorable events in pictures and copy, along with a universal theme that tied the book together.

The staff worked long and tedious hours for the finished product, sometimes staying late into the evening of a school afternoon or meeting early on a Saturday morning. It was, however, a very rewarding experience and worth the effort in the end for each member to see his work "hot off the press" and published for all to see! The help offered by Advisor, Mrs. Emily Simmons, was a great asset to the outcome of the book.

Most people did not realize the money that went into the production of the yearbook. Each member sold ads to various businesses to raise money. It is a memory book that is hoped to be treasured by all, now and in the years to come.

CALENDAR

TELL IT LIKE IT IS!

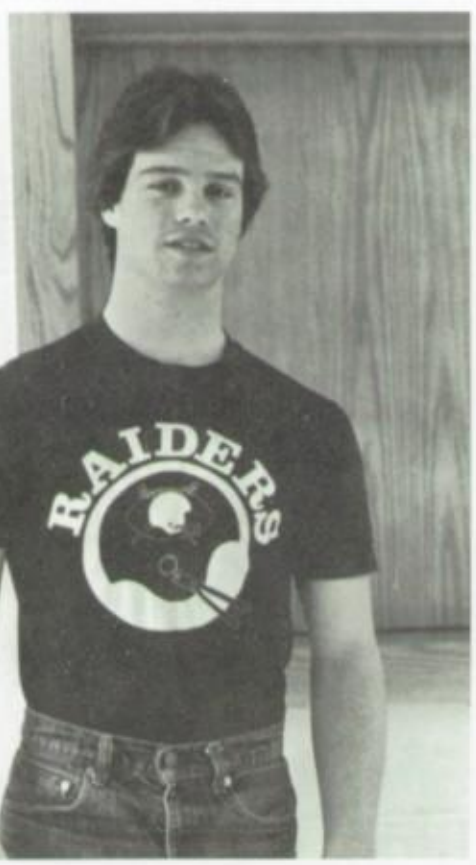
Joanne Zarello expresses her opinions on the "Prep" scene.

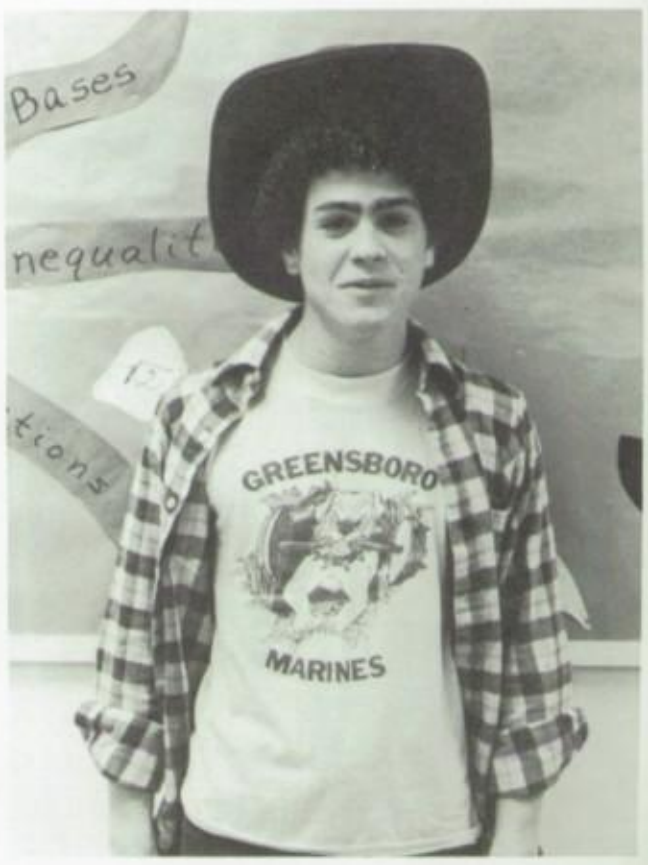
A possible desire to play professional football is shown by Rodney Combs.

Monnie McDaniels has caught the feared "Carolina Fever."

The Marines have captured the thoughts of Terry Morris.

A fan of "Punk Rock", Sherri Furr enjoys the music of the Go-Go's.





Forms of communication have advanced tremendously from the days of the Old West. In Cowboy times, the easiest way to deliver a message was by telegraph. Since then, the telephone was invented, which made communication with people near-by very easy. In 1982, technology made it possible to carry on a conversion with someone on the other side of the world in simply a few turns of the dial.

However, 1982's Cowboys still enjoyed the simple forms of communication, and to them, wearing their messages was the easiest way to deliver their thoughts and feelings to friends and strangers alike.

The slogans and pictures worn by the Cowboys expressed a variety of ideas and opinions. There were many styles of shirts showing the support for Southwest, as well as support for the schools where the wearer wished to continue his education. Some shirts showed favorites of the wearer: television and movie personalities, recording artists, restaurants, and vacation spots. And some shirts displayed the dislikes of the individual especially the dislike for the "prep" styles, symbolized by the Izod Alligator.

Whatever the slogan or picture on the shirts represented, the proud bearer was sure to tell others their opinions, and they told it like it was!

Kim Armstrong and Chris Bishop display their pasttimes.

A true Cowboy fan, Amy Funderburk lets strangers know the facts.

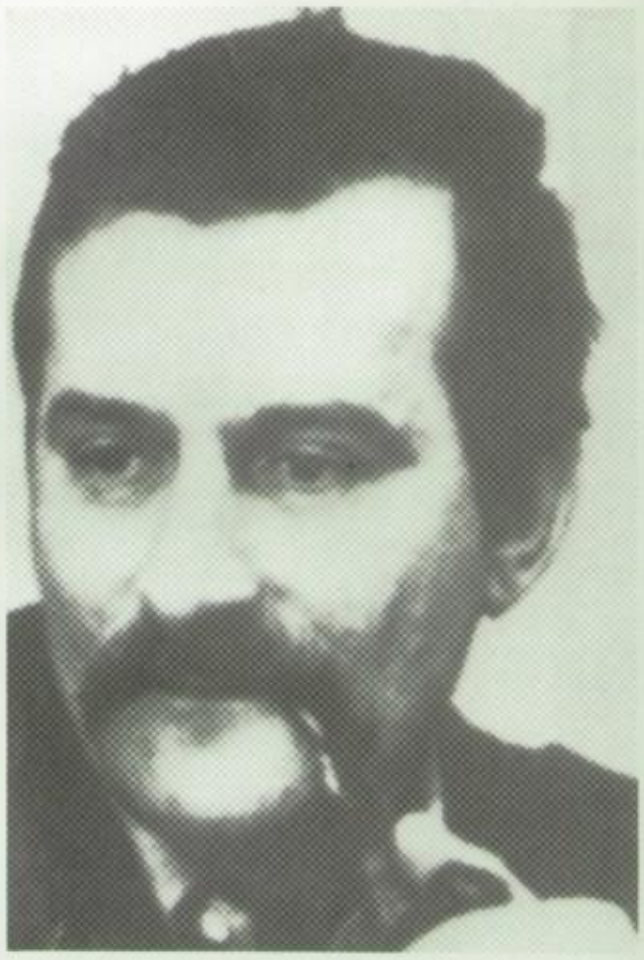
World Reflections

President Reagan is shoved into his limousine after he was shot by John Hinkley Jr. outside a Washington D.C. hotel on March 30, 1981.



Lech Walesa, leader of the Polish labor union, Solidarity.

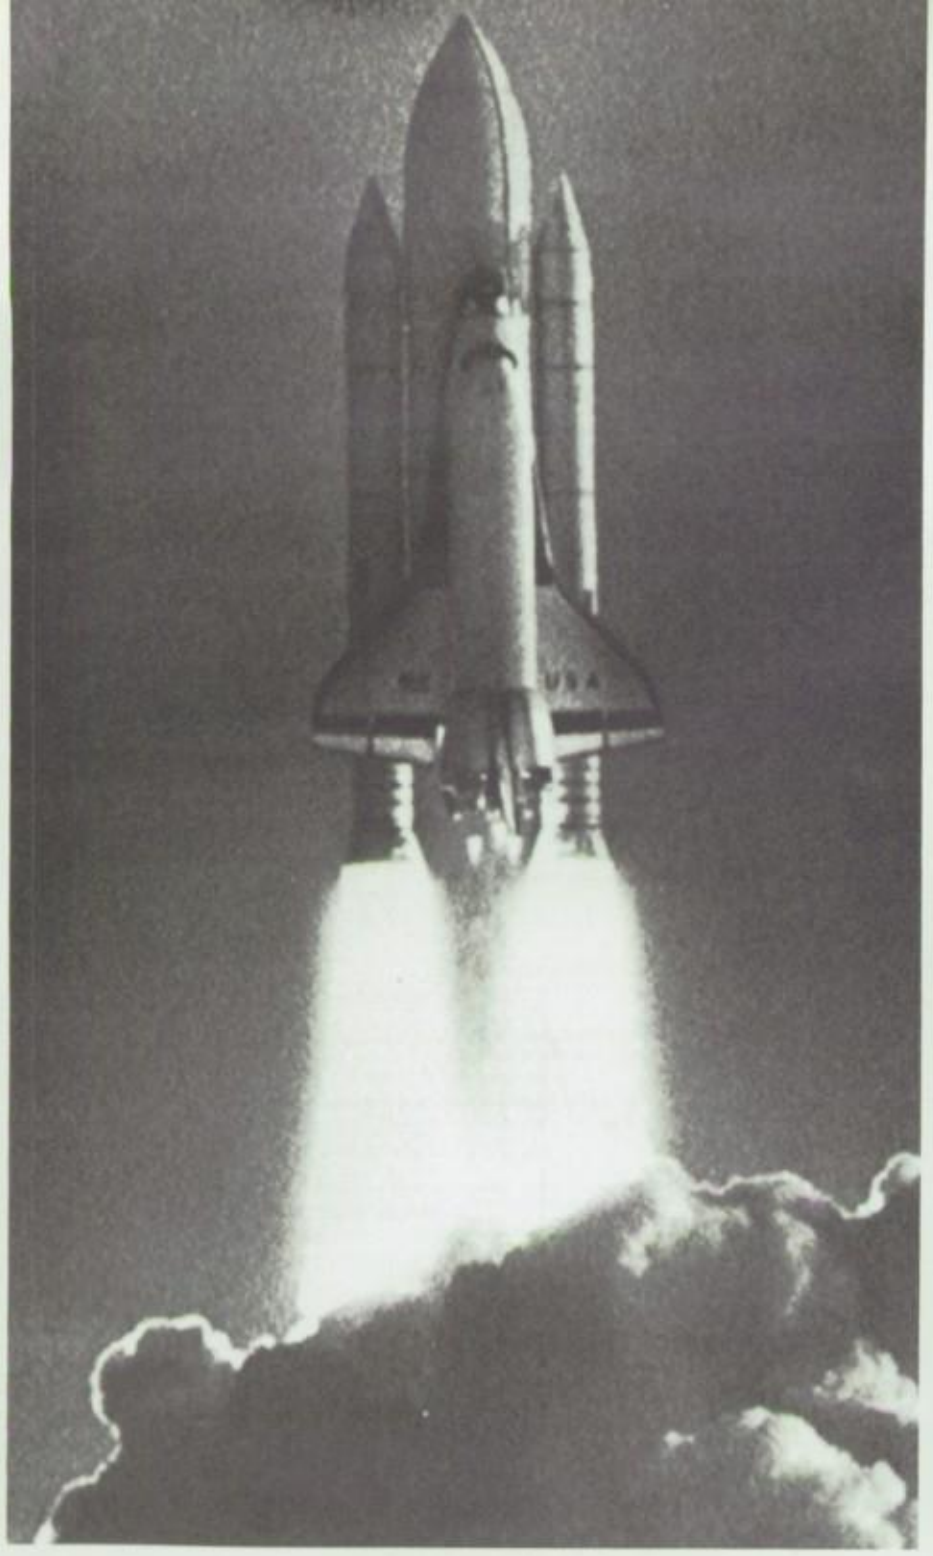
The exciting and tragic events of 1981-82 aroused our fascination as well as fear of the ever changing world around us.

We saw the assassination attempt of President Ronald Reagan, of Pope John Paul II, and the assassination of Egypt's President Anwar Sadat. Another shocking incident occurred in January of 1982 against the background of a winter that proved to one of the nation's worst. A jetliner leaving Washington D.C., after a snowstorm, struck a bridge and crashed into the Potomac River killing 78 people.

There were more enjoyable events that rose above these shattering incidents. It was a time for unity and celebration in the U.S. when the 52 American hostages returned home after more than a year of captivity in Iran. Probably the most awesome event of this year was the flight of the Space Shuttle, which captured the imagination of the millions who witnessed the spectacle.

Countless people and events here and far away continue to write the tale we know as history. There were several unforgettable memories from 1981-82, and we often saw our own lives in "World Reflections."

After being released by the Iranian government the 52 American hostages arrive in Frankfurt, West Germany on January 21, 1981.



The Space Shuttle Columbia takes off from the Kennedy Space Center in Florida on April 12, 1981 for its maiden voyage.

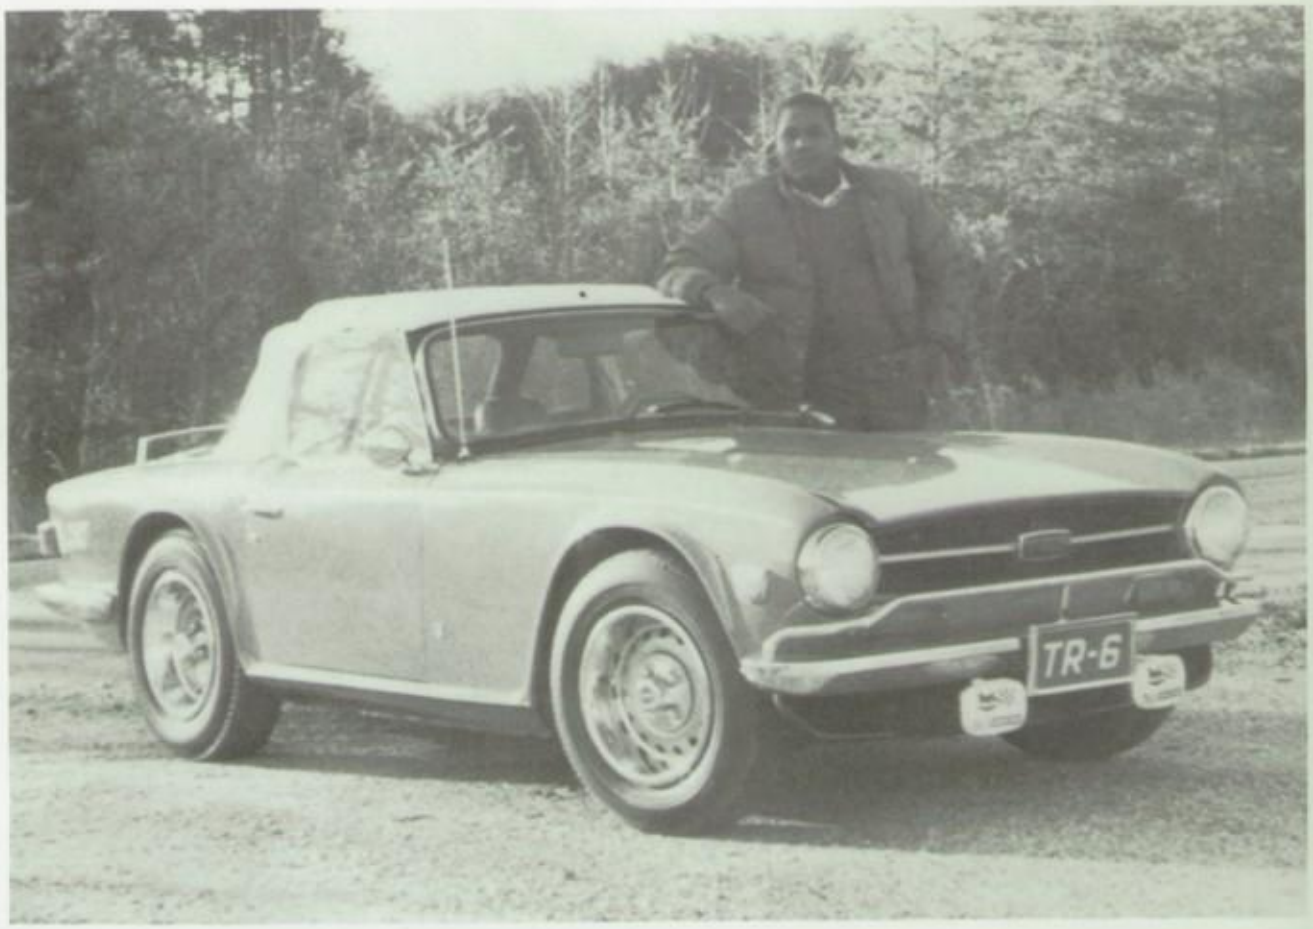
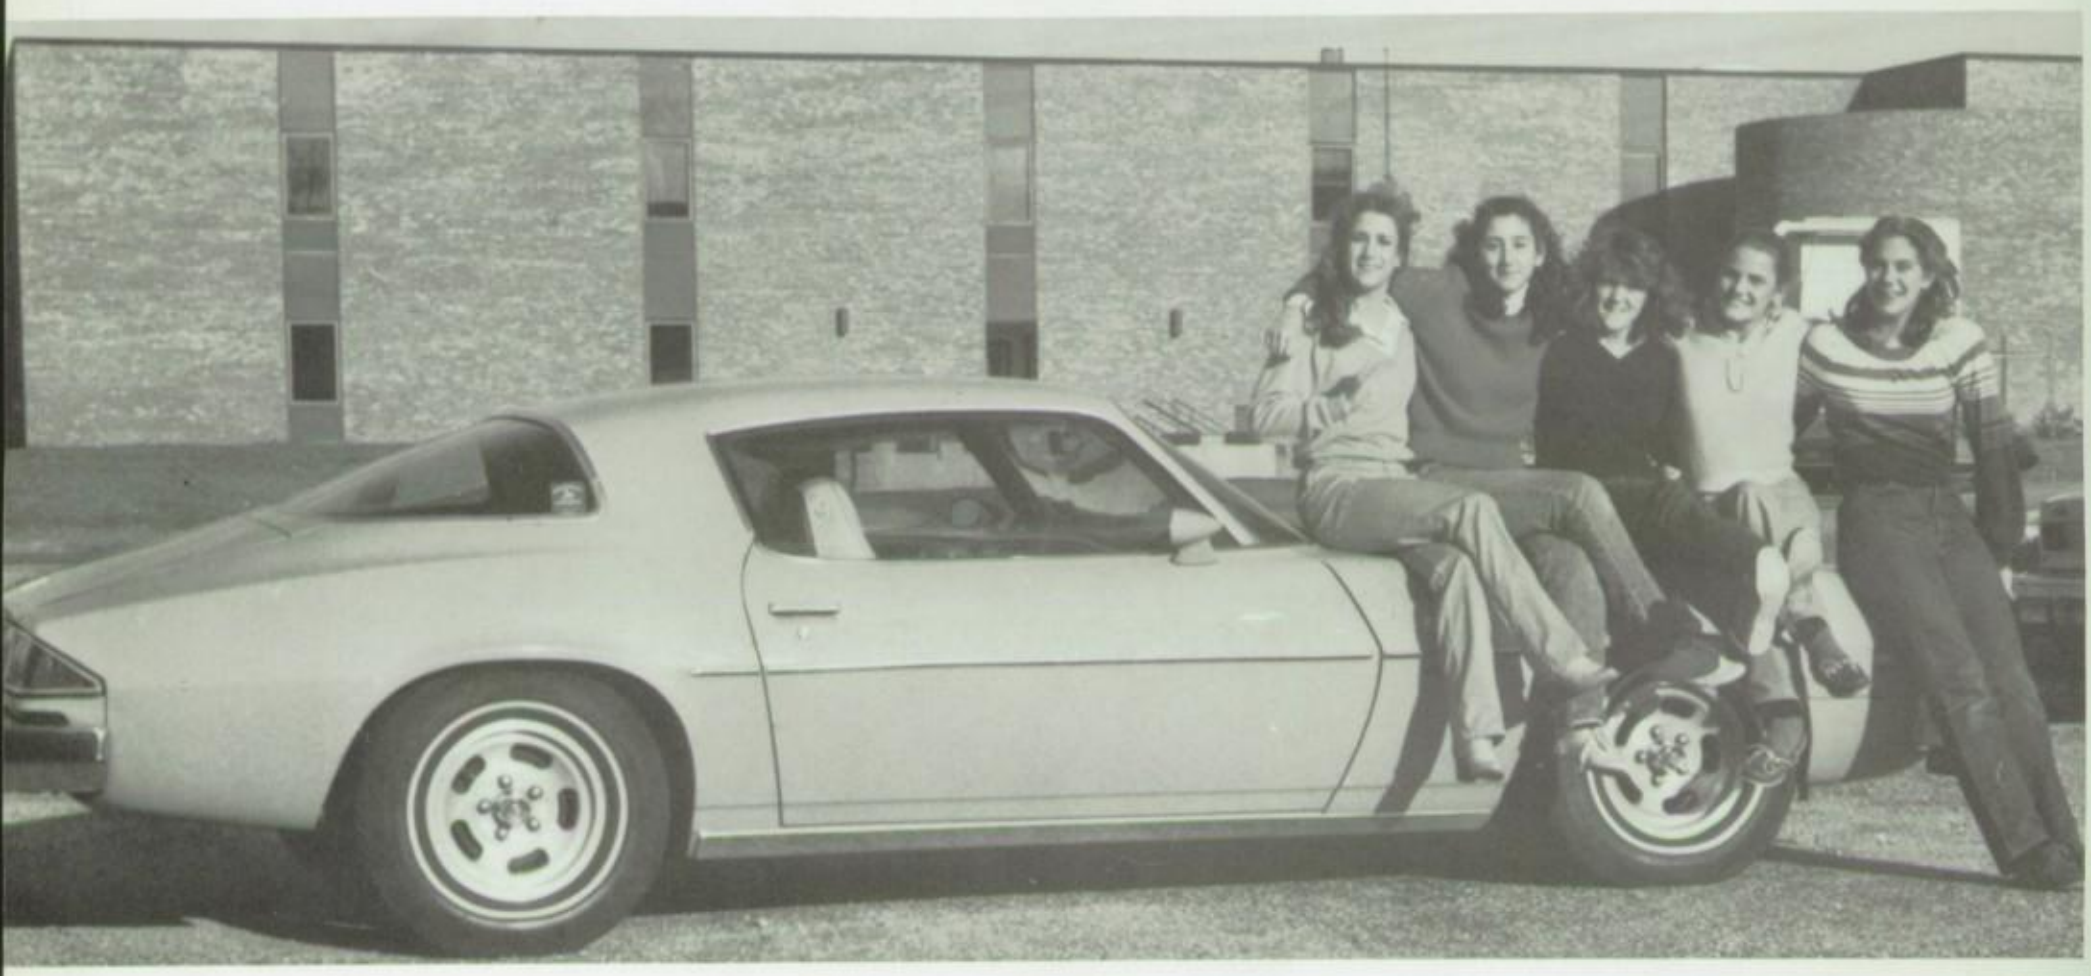
Running on Empty

It all started back in the good old days. The neighborhood gang would gather at the bus stop to wait for the ever dependable school bus. Remember? We could always rely on the bus, but as we grew older our fascination with cars increased, and we began the tedious countdown to sweet sixteen. By the time we had our licenses, transportation to school had taken on a whole new meaning. Those of us who were lucky enough experienced this phenomenon — our own wheels! — which found some of us "Running on Empty."





The Triumph TR-6 is Wayne Quick's way of driving with daring and style.

Karen Berry, Laurie Tippet, Lisa Crowder, Amy Little, and Carol Tweedy know that carpooling saves money as well as energy. Today is Amy Little's turn to drive her Carolina blue Camaro.

Hoping to be successful as a professional hood ornament someday, John Wright exhibits his skills on the front of his red Ford Fiesta.

Mike Nelson's version of a "low rider" can be found in his red Triumph Spitfire.

Bringing a touch of class and a bit of history to Southwest's student parking lot, Sondra Parham drives a restored 1948 Anglia.

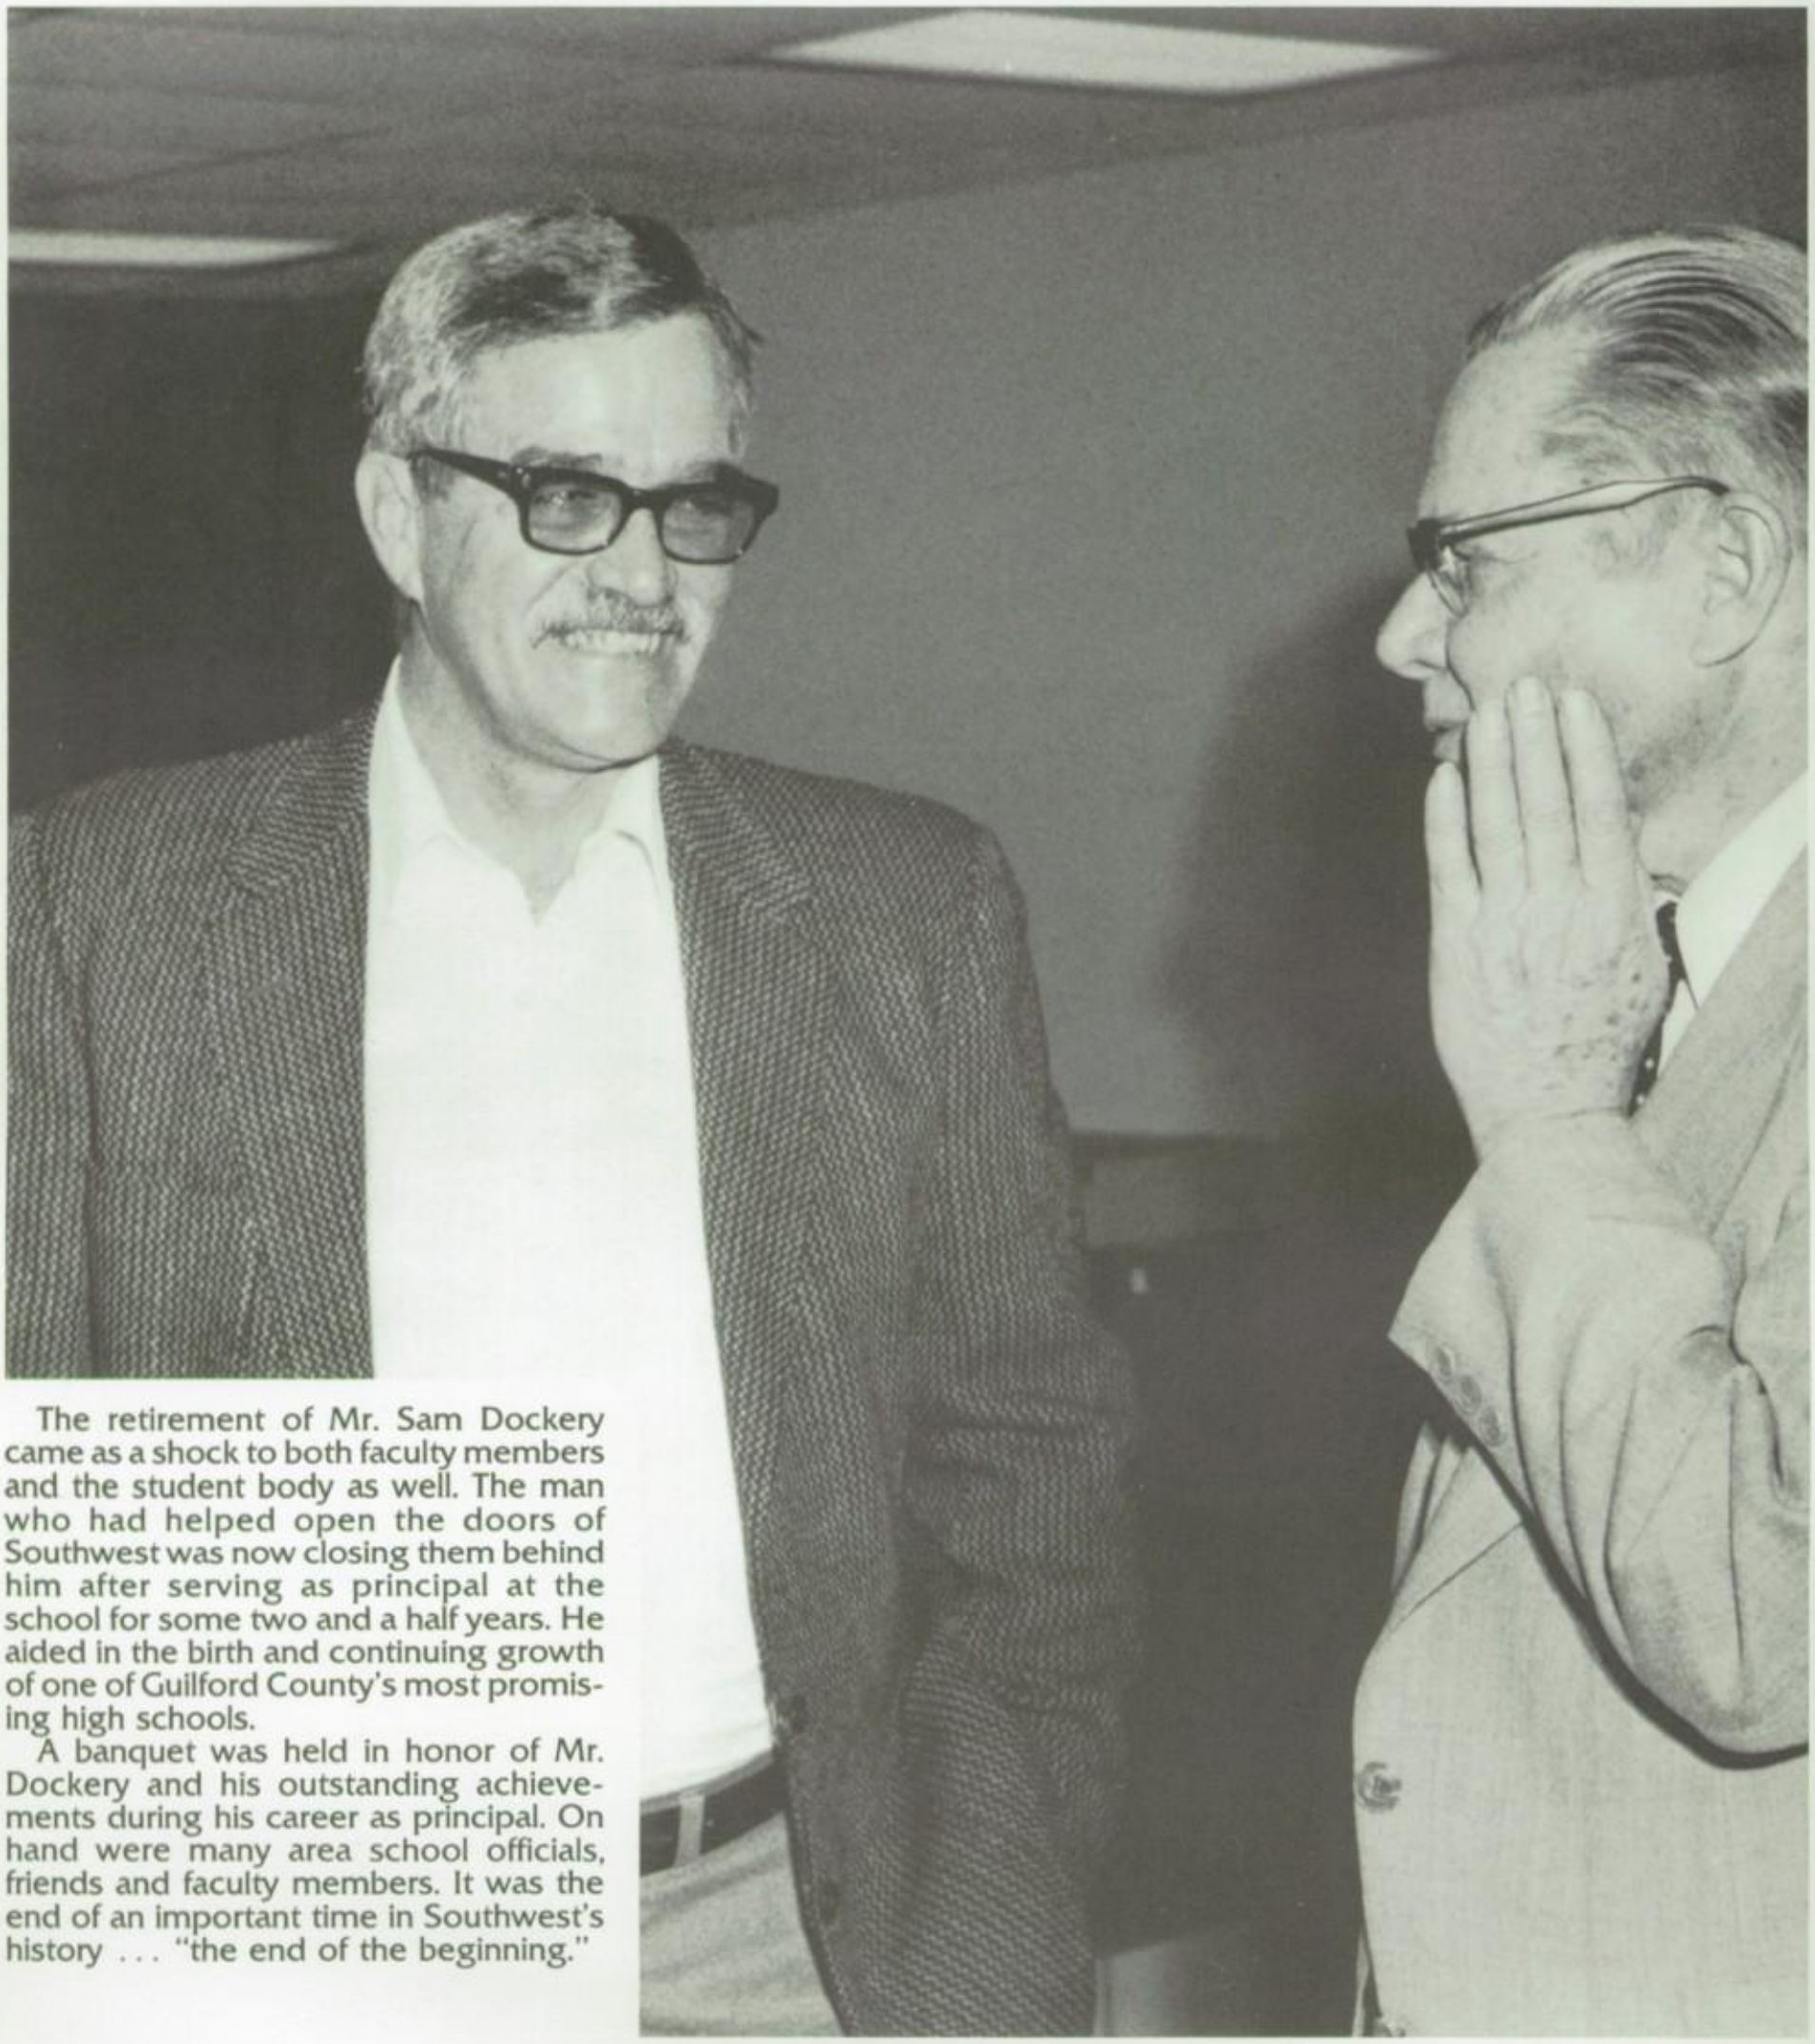
The End of the Beginning

The retirement of Mr. Sam Dockery came as a shock to both faculty members and the student body as well. The man who had helped open the doors of Southwest was now closing them behind him after serving as principal at the school for some two and a half years. He aided in the birth and continuing growth of one of Guilford County's most promising high schools.

A banquet was held in honor of Mr. Dockery and his outstanding achievements during his career as principal. On hand were many area school officials, friends and faculty members. It was the end of an important time in Southwest's history . . . "the end of the beginning."



Mr. Sam Dockery smiles as he reflects back on his years of hard work and determination while fulfilling his duties as principal.

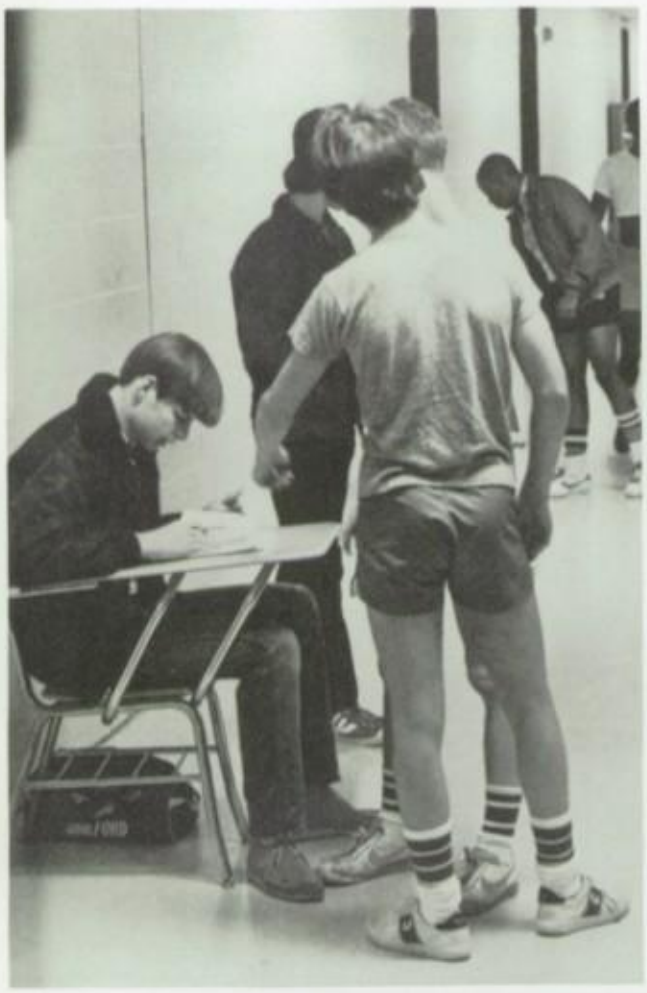
Mrs. Deana Freeman and Mrs. Judy Long bring a smile to the face of their former principal.

Mr. Whitey Boswell and Mr. Henry Walters congratulate Mr. Dockery on a job well done.

No job is complete without the backing of such friends as the former superintendent of schools, Mr. E.P. Pierce.

Guests of the banquet held in Mr. Dockery's honor enjoy an afternoon of good food and good company.

Even in the excitement of gym class, Kevin Taylor finds time to catch a moment of study.



Juli Sova and David Hamilton demonstrate what too much studying can do to a person.

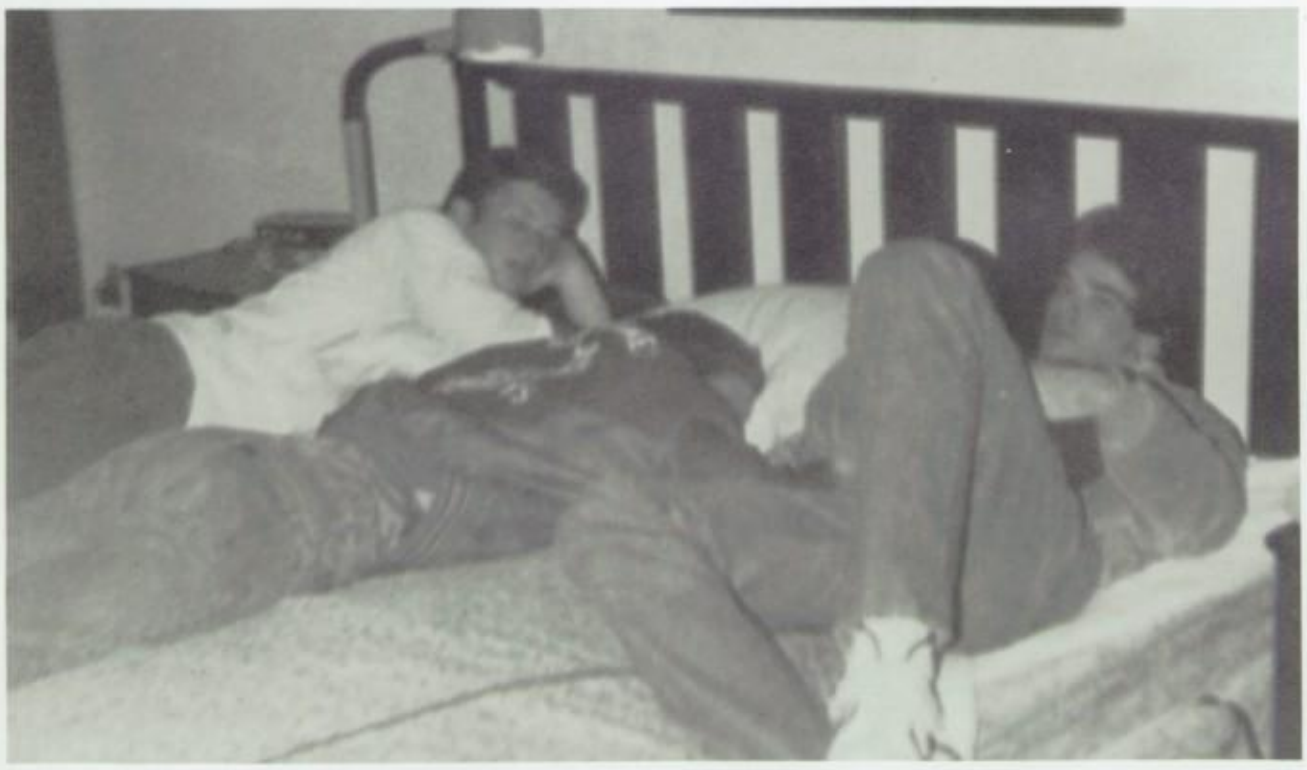
DO OR DIE!



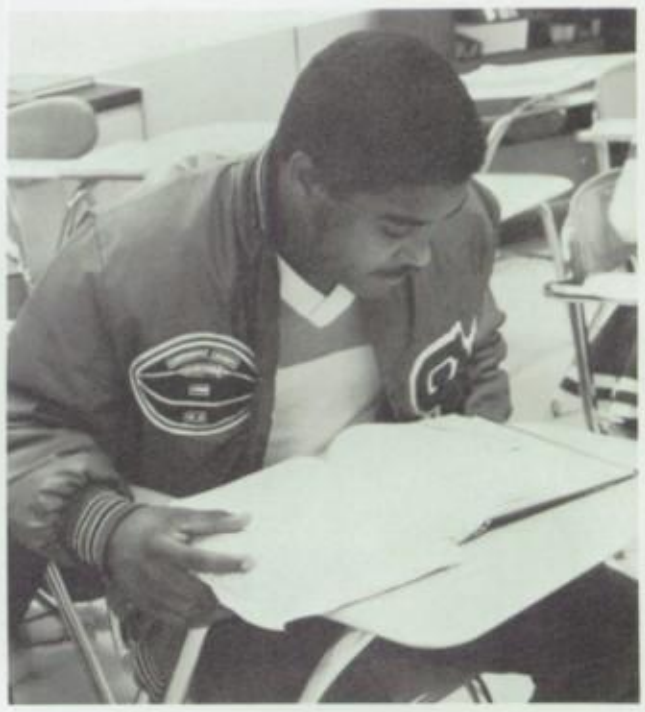
Andy Kinard, John Sedberry, and Karl Lucht express their deep concern for their studies.

Jill Murphy and Karen Yates find that a quiet library fulfills their study needs.

Did you ever stop to consider just what kind of a student you really were? Were you the student who studied for hours at a time memorizing information for a given test? If so, then you were the calm, cool, and collected one who waited patiently for that big test to be given out, quite confident of an A. Perhaps you were the one who never did learn to be quite so thorough and you waited until the last minute before getting everything together. You always found yourself in a frenzy when test time rolled around and therefore suffered the horrible consequences at report card time. On the other hand, you might have been one of those students who never quite got around to even picking up a book!

All of the students at Southwest fell into one of these categories. But often it was not the type of student you were, but the type of atmosphere you chose to study in. Perhaps you liked the enjoyment of studying among friends or maybe you found a place of quiet solitude such as the library. You may have even found yourself cramming in a bit of extra knowlege as you sat sandwiched in by two lunch-lovers!

Whatever material was studied and in what fashion students chose to learn was up to each individual. It was sometimes easy to forget that each person had different ways of accomplishing the same things, even when it came to studying.



Jerome Turner shows that academics and athletics do mix.

THE FOREMEN

Back in the Old West, the job of running the ranch was placed in the foremen's hands. At Southwest, Student Coucil has taken on some of these responsibilities for the students. They have put much effort and hard work into the Round-Up, Homecoming Week, school beautification, and Valentine Activities.

Officers for 1981-82 were Suzy Davis, president; Laurie Tippett, vice-president; Linda Johnson, corresponding secretary; Becky Fritz, recording secretary and Keith Wood, Treasurer. With these officers, Student Council members, like the foremen of the West, proved to be true leaders.

Suzy Davis, Anthony Gill and Amy Funderburk show that hard work is just part of the job.

Queens of Hearts

Valentine's Day is a special time filled with love, candies, and sweethearts! Nine girls who had worked their way into the hearts of their classmates were presented on this special occasion to dozens of Cowboy fans and well wishers. The ceremony occurred during half-time of the final home basketball game of the season.

The Basketball Court consisted of three seniors and two representatives each from the junior, sophomore, and freshman classes. The basketball teams voted on the Queen, crowned by players John Sedberry and Amos Adams. This lucky girl was Carol Tweedy, escorted by Derek Crump. Each girl, however, was her own queen, a queen in the hearts of all who knew her.

The Southwest Varsity Football team again displayed their prowess on the football field. With a record of nine and two, they had an auspicious start by handing to top 3A counterpart, Ragsdale, a 34 to 19 defeat. They finished regular season second in the Central Carolina Conference and then finished their post season play with a loss to a tough Charlotte Catholic squad in the 2A Division Two playoffs.

The Cowboys were led by captains John Sedberry, David Twisdale, and Amos Adams. Southwest players proved their strength by receiving many post season honors. Chris Reilly, David Brown, and Blake Malpass were voted All-CCC athletes at their respective positions. David Hamilton and David Twisdale had double honors as All-CCC and All-Metro athletes.

Hard work and determination of the players combined with the strong confidence of the coaches led the team to another successful season. Again the Cowboys carried on the winning tradition.

The backbone of Southwest spirit stemmed from the cheerleaders. They sponsored many pep rallies and spirit oriented projects. Throughout the summer months both squads participated in camps located at Appalachian and Duke. Both squads were awarded the dynamite stick for maintaining the most spirit throughout the week. Various other awards were given to the varsity for squad unity, best skit, and outstanding stunts and mounts. The cheerleaders worked hard to reach the goals that they set for themselves. The spirit roundup is a tiring but challeging task.

The Cowboy's varsity basketball squad made it three straight Central Carolina Conference regular season championships this year. After a sluggish start, the Cowboys fought back, led by captains John Sedberry and Amos Adams, and peaked with a climactic victory over Ragsdale and a third straight Central Carolina Conference tournament championship, which was capped by defeating a tough Randleman team. The Cowboys, under the direction of Coach Rich Motsinger, made their third straight appearance in the District Playoffs where they were met and defeated by a tough Chatham Central squad. The 1981-82 Girls' Varsity Basketball Team, under the direction of Head Coach Donna Brewer, proved once again that success is a matter of quality — not quantity. Although the Cowgirls lacked somewhat in height, they powered their way to another highly impressive season. The experience of the four starters returning from last season led the team to the conference championship with a record of 13-1, losing only to East Davidson. This season was also unique in that after only three years in existence, the Southwest Cowgirls won their first district championship which was decided by an exciting victory in overtime against Union Pines. With the conference and district championships behind them, our Girls' Varsity Basketball Team was more than a strong favorite in the state playoffs.

Despite a discouraging record, the Girls' JV Basketball Team proved to be a tough, competitive team this year. Under the coaching supervision of Mr. Joe Mitchell, the Cowgirls posted a season record of 4-12.

The Boys' JV Basketball Team, under the leadership of Coach Mark Berrier, posted a season record of 10-9 and a conference record of 10-4. Showing their dedication and perseverence, the Boys' JV Team battled competitively throughout the season.

All of the team members spent many long hours improving thier personal abilities and techniques. Their dedication and experience will prove to be invaluable in the future.

Advisors: Diane Gardner, Deana Freeman, Carol Tweedy, Suzy Davis, Tina Neal, John Sedberry, Todd Nichols.

In the Wild West, the sheriff and his deputies had many responsibilities, some of them being to enforce and set the laws and keep the town running smoothly. Our principal, Mr. Sam Dockery, has done just this during his years of administration at Southwest.

Mrs. Laverne Suggs and Mr. Joe Don Myers were both new to their administrative positions this year. Mrs. Suggs, our assistant principal, helped Mr. Dockery with much of the responsibility of keeping the school running smoothly. Mr. Myers took over the position of athletic director, scheduling the athletic events.

Without the help of our school secretary, Ms. Diane Gardner, and treasurer, Mrs. Deana Freeman, our school could not have functioned properly. The office assistants also helped to keep the office organized and running smoothly.

THE PONY EXPRESS

Captured at an inopportune time, Mr. Coy Temple handles some of the paperwork associated with the guidance department.

Talking on the phone, Miss Mary Dunlap cordially handles one of her counseling duties.

In the early days of the western frontier, speed and efficiency were essential to the success of the Pony Express. Today, speed and efficiency are still important. These qualities were constantly exhibited by the guidance and attendance departments.

The guidance department, composed of Miss Mary Dunlap and Mr. Coy Temple, aided students in their course selection, scheduling problems, college plans, and career goals. More often than not, they were there just to listen to a problem which may have confronted a student. Together they contributed to the success of the guidance department.

This year, Miss Annette Greene was in charge of the attendance department. With help from her assistants she worked diligently to keep track of the student body. Whether students needed an early dismissal or just an admit slip, they knew they could depend on the attendance department.

The library was also essential to the needs of the student. Reference materials and media equipment provided students with invaluable information. The librarian, Mrs. Pam Hill, and her aide, Mrs. Patricia Brown, worked industriously to satisfy the needs of the student. The library helpers also contributed greatly to the efficiency of the library. Together they made the library a very beneficial place for students.

Readin' an' Writin'

No matter how many years have passed since the era of the Old West, there will always be a terminal distate for reading, grammar, and writing among students.

Some at Southwest went to English class with an eagerness and zest that was incomprehensible to their classmates. Others went reluctantly but with a sense of acceptance, knowing that it had to be done and there was no getting around it.

Whether they went willingly or had to be pushed, they all relied on dictionaries, thesauruses, and Cliffs Notes to help defeat that stark, white page looming before them. Most of them survived the battle and emerged better students than they had been.

Our days in English class were made more enjoyable by the talents of Mrs. Laura Boyles, Mrs. Judy Broyhill, Mrs. Arlene Goldie, Mrs. Judy Long, Miss Cathy Parker, Mrs. Betsy Reagan, Mr. George Simon, Mrs. Lenchen Devane, and Miss Linda West.

Almost all everyday situations require the ability to perform such basic math procedures as adding and subtracting.

Although only two years of math were required, many students took additional math classes. Those students headed toward college could be found taking the more accelerated classes of Advanced Math and Calculus.

The math department included: Mrs. Hazel Bowen who taught Advanced Math and Algebra II, Mr. Joe Mitchell who taught Algebra I and Geometry and Mrs. Jane Allender who taught Geometry and Consumer Math. Mr. John Camp taught General Math.

While most students seem preoccupied, Carrie Lackey works to complete her assignment.

Jeff Burke is lost in his own little world.

Mrs. Bowen's third period Algebra II class has found that there are more important things than math.

Mrs. Bowen waits for a response to her question.

THE MEDICINE MEN

A familiar sight in the Old West was the traveling Medicine Show. This featured a chemical wizard who claimed to have a cure for anything from baldness to gout. The arrival of these "Medicine Men" to any town was an event which gathered great crowds of people.

The Science teachers of Southwest Guilford can be compared to the Medicine Men. Their concoctions in lab have entertained and astounded many students. These brews contain some of the same elements which were found in the elixirs these chemists of the Old West used.

Along with their entertaining shows, the science teachers attempt to teach us the secrets of their trade with the hope that some of their students will carry on the tradition!

Banking, farming, and trading — the ways of life for many people living in the West. This was the forerunner to today's business world.

Business courses are designed to prepare students for future in business. Typing I and II, Shorthand, and Record Keeping were taught by Mrs. Gerry Harris. Mrs. Pat Lore taught Typing I and Accounting; Mrs. Carol Rinehardt taught Data Processing, Office Occupations I, and COOP II; Mr. Tom Weikel taught Introduction to Trades, ICT I and II and Record Keeping; Mrs. Pam Armstrong taught DE I and II, Marketing and Fashion Merchandising. Mrs. Patricia Brownlow, head of the Home Economics Department, taught Home Economics, Family Life Education, and Family Living.

Students enrolled in these courses gained a better understanding of the business world. They also had an opportunity to strengthen the skills which may be used in a future career in business.

The Explorers

Laura Grimmer finds her American History class quite amusing.

During the time of the Early Westward Expansion, explorers roamed the American Wilderness in search of knowledge and fortune. Objectively, many students had the same goals in mind when they signed up for a course in Social Studies. Understanding their obligation to take two years of history, one being American History, many students opted to take even more to meet college admission requirements.

The Social Studies department included: Miss Annette Greene who taught World History; Mr. Joe Myers who taught American History, Advanced American History, and World Geography; Mr. Larry Ratliff who taught American History and Sociology and Economics; and Mr. John Tripp who taught Psychology and the History of North Carolina.

Just as the early explorers gained a better knowledge and understanding of the American Wilderness, students gained a better knowledge and understanding of history. By learning about history, students hopefully gained a more comprehensive understanding of the world both past and present.

Jeff Ellis finds that taking notes is an intregal part of his Social Studies course.

Les Cowboys & Los Gauchos

The words doggie, chuckwagon, and rustlers were not familiar expressions to the French students at Southwest Guilford. Thanks to Miss Grana, the French teacher, these daring "etudiants du francais" learned a language new to the Old West.

Although it was new, these students were catching on quickly to the language because of Miss Grana's diligent drilling of expressions, verb tenses, and vocabulary. If you asked any of her students about French, "C'est Chouette!" or "Great" would have been their response.

Cathy Stewart and Jeff Gore concentrate on perfecting their French vocabulary.

Laura Grimmer and David Hart are spellbound by Ms. Grana's congugation of verbs.

¿Como esta usted? is Melissa Waden's way of greeting visitors to Spanish class.

Christen Hayworth, Eric Dugan and Jody Lathrop each have different ideas about Spanish.

In the Old West, the Spanish language was a way of life. It was the language spoken by the original inhabitants of the West, the Mexicans. When other groups settled there, Spanish was incorporated into everyday use.

Though Spanish came naturally to the early settlers, it was slightly more difficult for our Cowboys. Mr. George Simon and Mrs. Judy Long, "los profesores" (Spanish for teacher), instilled an interest in the students by having Spanish Culture Day, which included cooking, researching Spanish countries and visting Spanish restaurants. Along with this, the students learned vocabulary and worked on verb tenses. By doing all this, the teachers created a desire to learn about the Spanish people and their culture.

THE ARTISANS

The Webster's Dictionary defines an artisan as a skilled craftsman. The Drama, Art and Choral Students at Southwest could definitely be described as artisans. Under the superior apprenticeship of Emily Simmons, Wendy Kauffman and Bing Elliott, these dedicated students strived for perfection in their respective fields. Each year, through their artistic endeavors, these students have added a special touch to the lives of students at Southwest, and the 1981-82 school year was no different.

The Beta Club is an honor society dedicated to service to the school and community. They worked hard, hoping that any service they performed would be helpful.

The club began the year with a traditional candlelight ceremony to induct new members, held on November 5. Plans were made for a blood drive on March 4 and a bike-a-thon for cystic fibrosis. The district convention was held at Madison-Mayodan High School on February 3. Several members ran for offices at the convention in Greensboro.

It must be said the without the trememdous help of Miss Cathy Parker and Mrs. Hazel Bowen, the success of the Beta Club would not have been possible.

The members of the Beta Club certainly were "a cut above," and it is hoped that their tradition will be continued in the future.

In the Rodeos of the early West, Cowboys matched their physical abilities and talents against one another in many contests of skill. This rivalry or competitive spirit was also present in the Physical Education Department. Whether students were competing in a rousing game of basketball or participating in a body-building program, they always met the challenge with determination and a will to succeed.

Head football coach, Mr. Roy Boyles, taught Physical Education and Advanced Physical Fitness. In addition to teaching Physical Education and Advanced Physical Education, Miss Donna Brewer also coached the Girl's Varsity Basketball Team. Assistant football coach, Mr. Jim Coggins, taught Advanced Physical Fitness. Together they were responsible for the success of the Physical Education Department.

At the end of the day, students are eager to be on their way home.

A common sight in the Old West was a wagon train winding over the open prairie.

Every afternoon Southwest's "wagon train" rolled out of the parking lot taking everyone home. Our wagon master was Mr. Joe Don Myers. He carefully constructed the bus routes and made sure everything ran in an orderly manner.

The bus drivers not only brought us to and took us home from school, they also drove us to athletic events and field trips. In the driver's seat they took on the tremendous responsibility of getting us to our destinations safely. To all the drivers we express our greatest appreciation.

Mr. Myers signals the buses to leave.

With a watchful eye, Chris Reilly supervises the activities of students on his bus.

Ranch hands were a vital part of the Old West. Without them, ranchers would have never been able to keep up with the vast amount of work that needed to be done. Our cafeteria staff and janitorial staff were important in much the same way.

The janitors provided us with a neat and clean place to learn. Although they were not always the most visible aspect of the school, they played a major roll in keeping it together.

Every day the cafeteria staff not only prepared lunch but also prepared breakfast for those of us who wanted it. This year the variety of foods for lunch expanded with the addition of an a la carte line.

Without the help of these two groups, our days here at Southwest would not have been nearly as enjoyable.

THE COWBOYS

Freshmen and Sophomore class officers: Amy Funderburk, Donald Ray Pate, Anthony Gill, Tommy Meyers, Jamie Hamilton, Angela Twisdale, Carrie Lackey, and Lynn Wright.

THE TRAILBLAZERS

A trailblazer is a cowboy who clears a trail to guide others. The seniors at Southwest have blazed new trails of pride and unity for their "side kicks," the underclassmen. These young cowboys will follow the seniors' paths in continuing their success in the years to come.

In the three years the class of '82 has been at Southwest, a great school spirit and unity has grown. This spirit was shown in the participation and support of the school's athletics and other school activities as well. The excitement of the football games, Homecoming Week, basketball games, and the Prom increased the seniors' feeling of unity toward the school as well as each other.

Pride was exhibited by seniors in the purchasing of green and white football jerseys with the motto, "When you say seniors, you've said it all!" This kind of pride was shown in everything the seniors did and will always be present at Southwest.

The seniors have brought a special kind of closeness, unity, and pride to the school. These qualities will always be present for the Southwest Cowboys to follow. Although the seniors will be leaving Southwest, the class of '82 will always ride high in the saddle.

Suzanne Lowe is determined not to be stumped by her physics problems.

DEAD OR ALIVE!

FRONTIERSMEN

A frontiersman is a cowboy living on the border of a territory. The Juniors have become the frontiersmen of Southwest and are on the fringe of becoming Seniors.

During the '81-'82 school year the Juniors had many new experiences. The Prom was a new and memorable night for most Juniors. Seeing their friends dressed formally was an experience in itself. There was also that dreaded Saturday morning when the Juniors took the SAT. However, they knew it was all in the part of becoming a Senior.

School spirit grew in the Junior class through the purchasing of school rings and letter jackets. The Juniors wore these rings and letter jackets to show their friends and rivals that they were the Cowboys, and would be for another year.

"A smile a day and I'll soon be a junior," says Becky Fritz.

HOMESTEADERS

As the Homesteaders of Southwest, the Sophomores have helped support the school. Through their constant enthusiasm, they won the coveted Spirit Award presented to the class which showed the most spirit during Homecoming Week.

The Sophomores succeeded by working hard to get into the swing of high school life. With their newly acquired licenses, they were eager to be everywhere at the right time. By being present at most ball games, the Sophomores cheered the Cowboys to many victories.

In their two years at Southwest, the Sophomores showed much spirit and will continue with their support in their next two years at Southwest.

PIONEERS

After attending their first year in high school, the freshmen of Southwest became known as the Pioneers. Although they were at a new school, they joined in with the other classes to become a Cowboy.

The freshmen got involved in many school activities such as joining clubs, participating in athletics, and showing their spirit through the support for their school. These freshmen will have another three years to become even more a part of their school, before they finally graduate as the Seniors of Southwest.

Cathy England "points out" the advantages of the a la carte line.

These Freshmen appear exhausted from their studies.

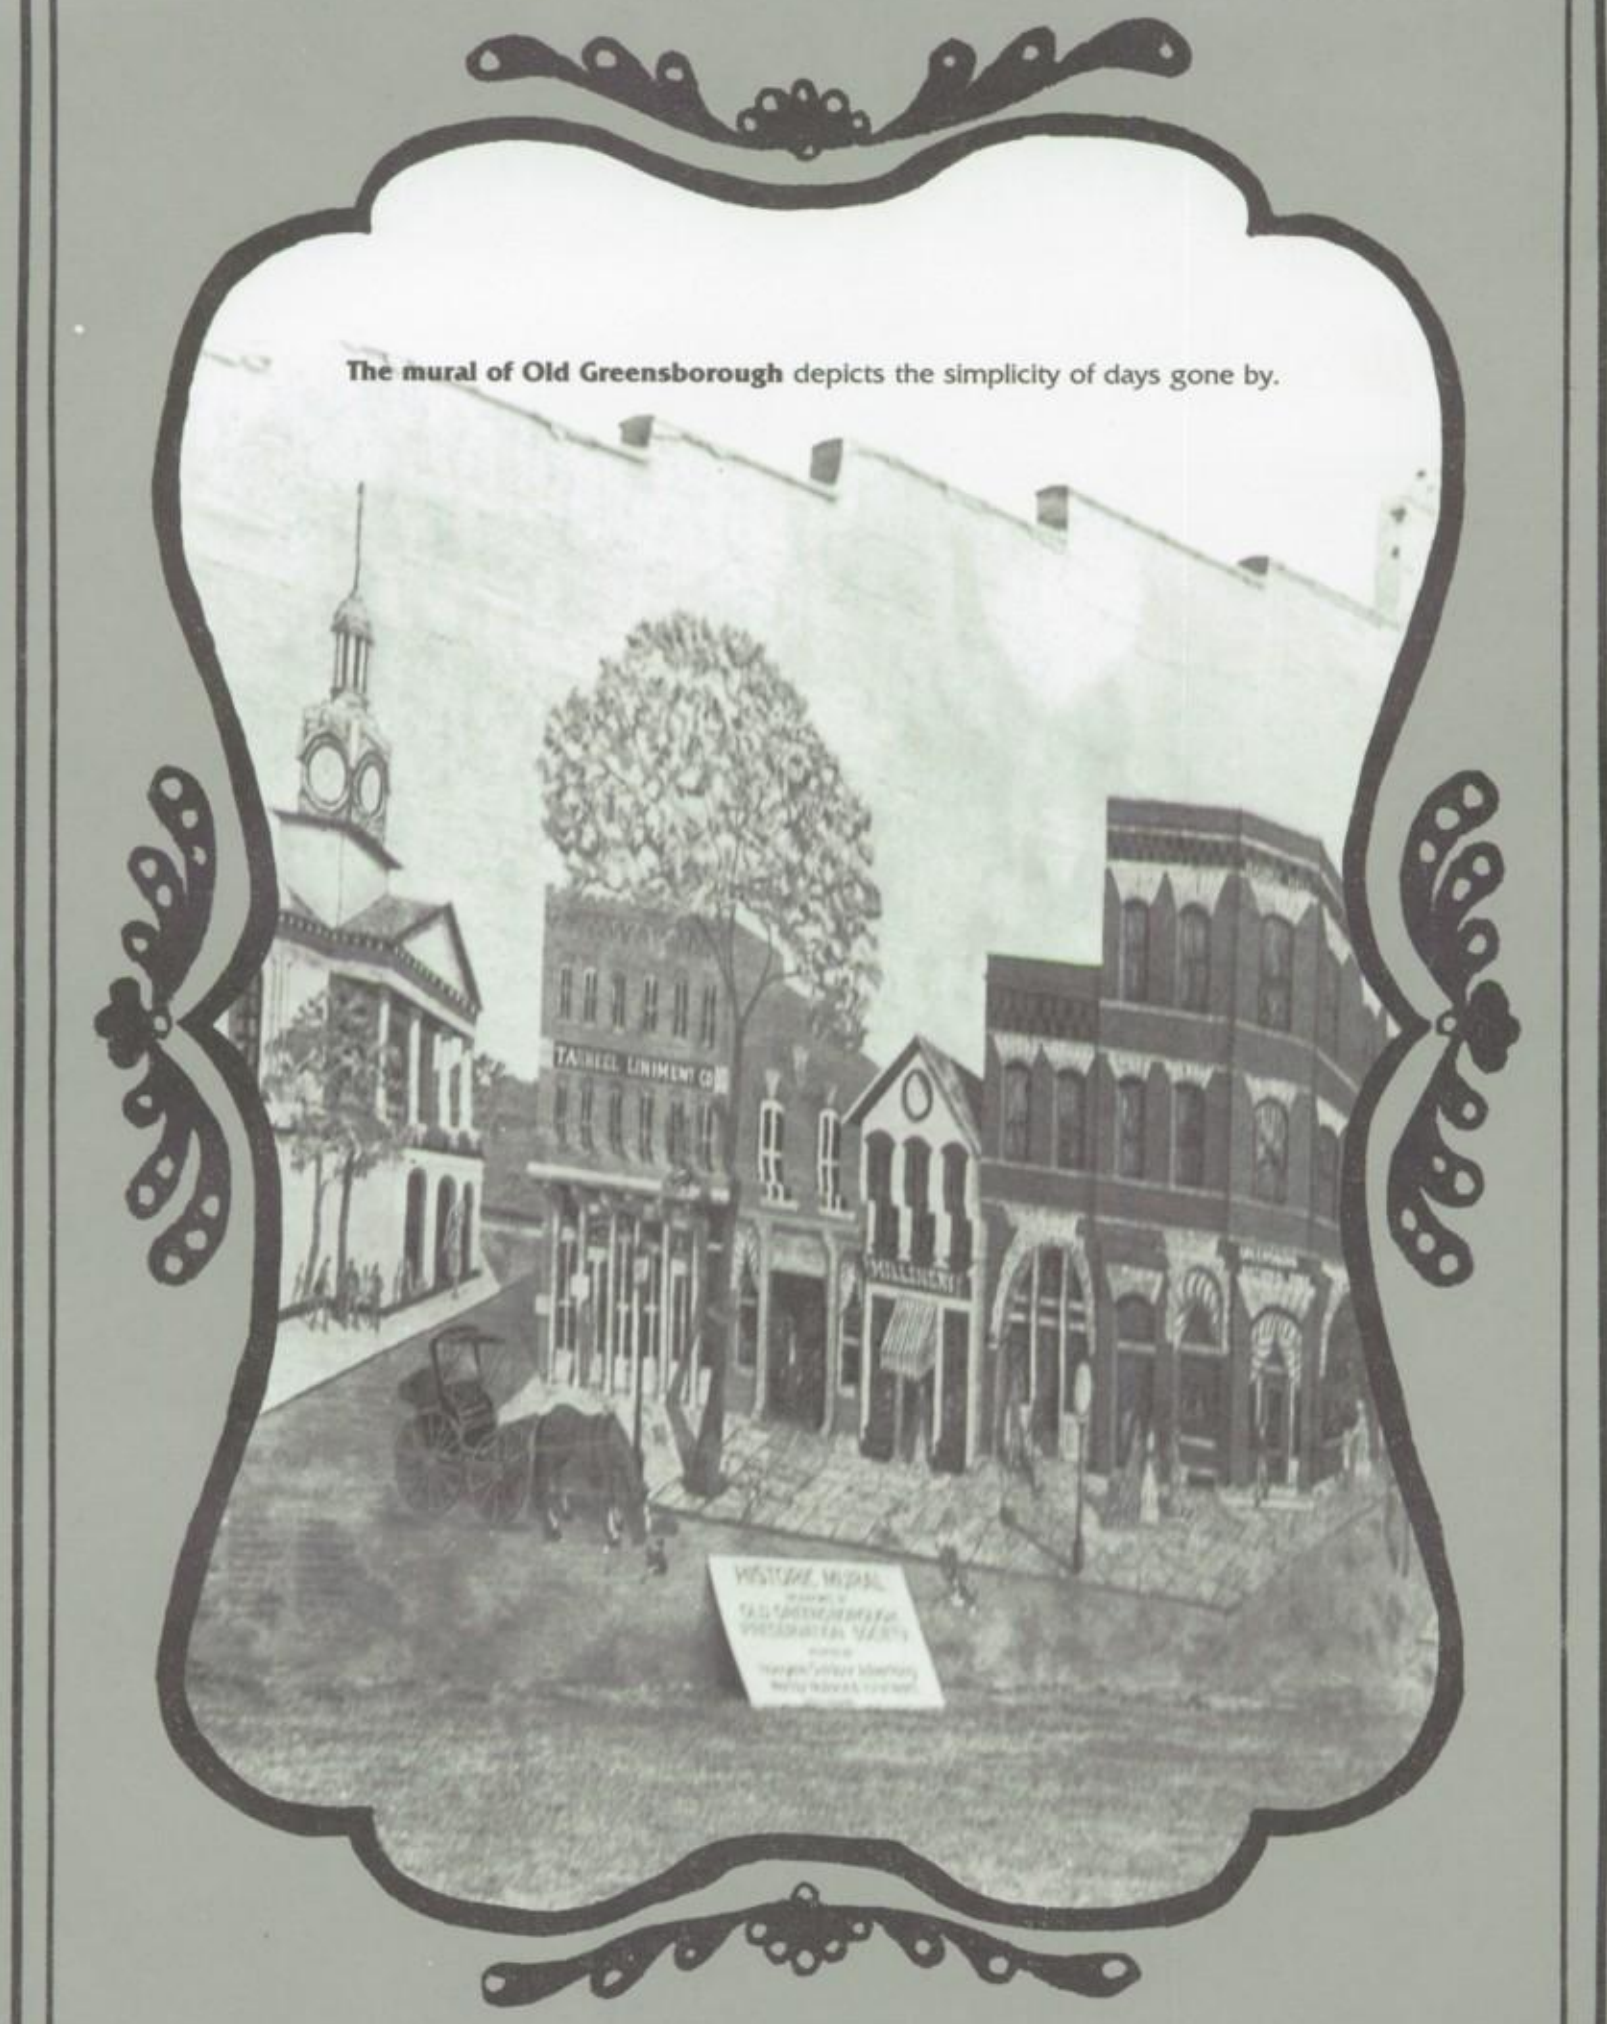
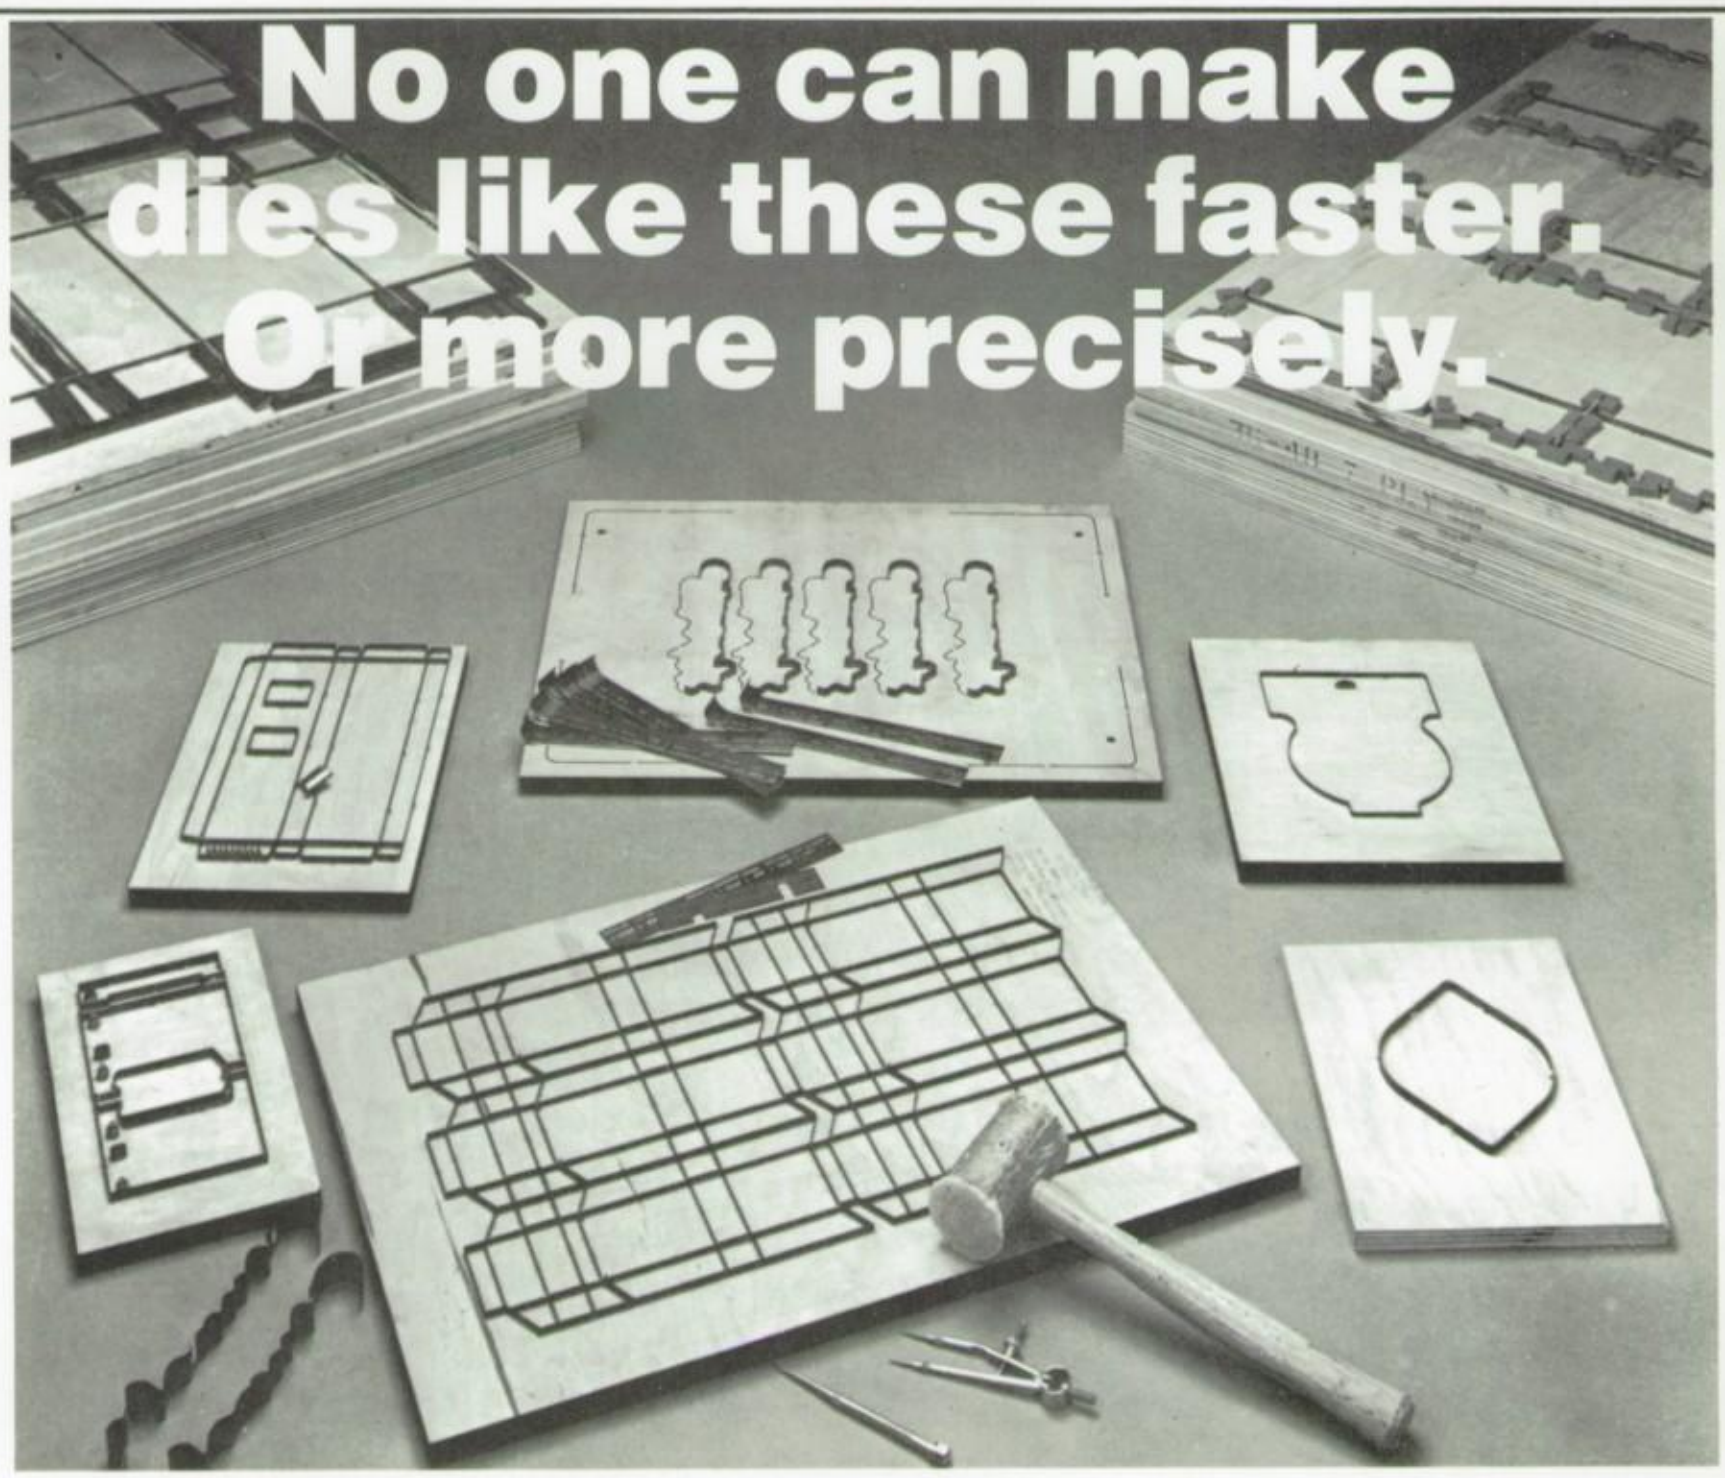
THE TRADING POST

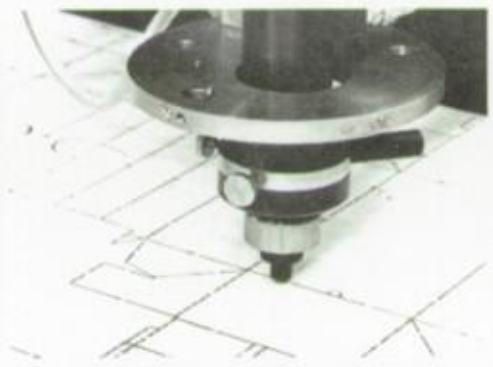


The mural of Old Greensborough depicts the simplicity of days gone by.



We'd like you to see our laser prove it!

Just ask us to show you how fast we can handle your toughest assignment, whether it's a folding carton, tags, labels, irregular shapes or something you haven't dreamed of yet. It's a snap with our LASER die making system. Faster, more accurate than any conventional method. One up or step and repeat to one hundred up makes no difference. Thanks to space-age technology, each die will be an exact duplicate of your original. All you need is our reference number to re-order. No prints. No samples.



Does it all sound too good to be true? Why not make us prove it? Call us the next time you need speedy service on a really difficult job, we'll show you what fast precise die service really means.

Mr. Dean Dull

The Cowboys survived another year on the frontier, a year which held a major change. Mr. W. Dean Dull, of Ferndale Junior High School was named the new principal of Southwest Guilford High School on Wednesday night, March 3, by Guilford County School Superintendant Dr. Robert M. Boggs, and took his position on March 22.

The West was won in 1982, and the joined forces of each individual brought about this victory. The Cowboys combined their talents and skills to create a unity which would overcome any obstacle it encountered. Although the forces divided when the victory was achieved, the pleasures gained from living and working together would never be forgotten. Many of the Cowboys would remain on the Southwest Guilford range, but some would be moving on, preparing to face new challenges. And every Cowboy, whether staying in his place for another year or more, or moving on to a new way of life, would be anxiously scanning the "New Horizon."

Sharon, We have known each other for a long time now, and I can truely say that I have enjoyed ever moment with you. It seems as if as the years go by our friendship becomes stronger and stronger. I guess it is because we both are maturing as these years pass and realize how important our friendship is. We have had some great times together, but what especially stands out in my mind is when we went to Virginia. So far that has been one of highlights in my life and I am glad that you was able to share this time with me. I fell that there is nothing that can or will brake up our friendship. I must say that I will truely fill and miss your absence from Southwest next year, but I hope this doesn't mean that I won't be seeing you any more. I wish you all the luck in the world and the very best in your future. Love you always

Sharon,
I don't know how, but we have managed to be friends for a long time and especially the past three years. I guess it was intelligents on our part; not letting the little ones set in our ways. We have been here to help each other out in thick and thin in our times of need. Even though sorde feel that we have little to close. But I guess it was for us to see what the other needed to be to themselves (herself). Well, for the most of all it has been great. And all we have to do now is to keep on strivis until we reach the top. "We can do it" It is being handed to us and all we have to do is take it. I wish you much success and happiness in the many years to come. And lots of prayers with the man of your choice (Slick Rick).

A friend Always,
